COST OF RELIEF
PROGRAM MAY
BE 8 BILLIONSPlan to Obtain Bulk
by Bond Issues.BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., March 24.—(Special.)—The Roosevelt depression relief program, it was learned today, embraces undertakings calling for government financing that may approximate 8 billions of dollars.

Of this amount about 700 millions would be provided by direct appropriations from the treasury, according to present plans, while 7 billions would be raised by bond issues.

The Roosevelt administration, it was also learned, contemplates bringing the federal budget into balance after eliminating all items representing direct charges on the treasury for depression relief. The budget is to be confined to normal expenditures.

Five Major Undertakings.

So far as it has been outlined up to date the Roosevelt relief program comprises the following undertakings:

1. Refinancing of farm mortgages to be financed by issues of bonds, possibly aggregating $3,000,000,000.
2. Refinancing of city and village home owners' mortgages by bond issues that may aggregate 3,000,000,000.
3. Public works construction for which the Wagner bill provides a bond issue of 1,000,000,000.
4. Grants of direct aid to the states for which the Wagner bill provides an appropriation of 500,000,000.
5. Refinancing and conversion of government bonds to be financed from direct appropriations 200,000,000.

Total $7,700,000,000. In addition there is the President's farm relief bill embodying a scheme for boosting the prices of farm products, the cost of which would be upwards of a billion dollars but would be paid indirectly by consumers in what amounts to a sales tax. Theoretically the only charges on the treasury would come about as a result of the financing of operations under marketing agreements by the R. F. C. If such R. F. C. loans were not repaid in full the taxpayers would foot the bill.

Some Apprehensions Exist.

The magnitude of the Roosevelt relief program, involving enormous outlays of federal funds whether in direct appropriations or bond issues, has been received with some apprehension by the business community. The economy act providing for a 500 million dollar slash in cost of the federal government was widely accounted a major factor in the upward swing of the stock and commodity markets ten days ago. The sagging of prices on these exchanges to lower levels than before is now being attributed to the promulgation of the relief program.

Present estimates of the funds that would be required for the refinancing of farm and city home mortgages are largely guess work. The farm mortgage bill is still in process of formulation, though Mr. Roosevelt expects to get it before Congress next week. He is still pressing for a reduction of the interest rate to about 3 per cent.

The bonds are to run for 30 or 40 years. They would be issued by the federal land banks but guaranteed as to principal and interest by the government.

Relief Grants to Be Made.

Direct aid to the states for relief of destitution is to be a grant, not a loan as at present. Funds are to be furnished only to those states satisfying the federal authorities that they no longer can raise all the money required for this purpose. The administration takes the position that to furnish funds from the federal treasury as loans would be to perpetuate a situation, inasmuch as such loans will never be repaid. The forthcoming legislation therefore is to provide for outright gifts of federal funds to the states in effect, the debt system.

When it is pointed out that while saving 500 millions in his economy bill the President is proposing to increase expenditures to the extent of 800 millions for the debt the administration retorts that the federal government cannot let anybody starve and that such relief funds constitute an extraordinary expenditure not properly included in the budget.

On this basis, with 500 millions saved by the economy act, and upward of 200 millions more by reorganization of the administrative branch of the government and with 500 millions from the beer tax and 137 millions from the continued gasoline tax the President expects to wipe out the deficit shown in the budget after eliminating depression relief expenditures.

GERMAN JEWS
CALL ATROCITY
STORIES 'LIES'Reports Branded
'Pure Inventions.'

BERLIN, March 24.—(AP)—A statement that certain foreign newspapers are printing "irresponsible distortions" concerning the treatment of Jews in Germany was issued today by the Central Union of German Citizens of the Jewish Faith. Reports of anti-Jewish atrocities are "pure inventions," the statement said.

The Central union is an incorporated society with headquarters in Berlin and it comprises 21 affiliated organizations in the different German states and 1,200 local centers.

The aims of the union are given as to combat anti-Semitism and to promote the inner peace of the German people. The official organ, the weekly Centralverein Zeitung, has a circulation of 60,000 and the monthly edition of 70,000. The publication carries extensive literary news and is rated very highly by Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen.

Protest Against Reports.

The Patriotic Society of National German Jews took action similar to that of the Central union, protesting against reports of atrocities as "foreign attempts to blackmail Germany, which we, as Germans, oppose with the same determination as our non-Jewish compatriots."

The statement of the Central union said: "Certain foreign newspapers are spreading stories to the effect that mutilated bodies of Jews are regularly found at the entrance to the Jewish cemetery in Welschen, a suburb of Berlin; that Jewish girls are forcibly herded into public squares, and that hundreds of German Jews have reached Geneva, nine-tenths of them, including many children, terribly maltreated."

All such reports are pure inventions.

Hit 'Irresponsible Distortions.'

"This union emphatically declares that German Jewry cannot be held answerable for such irresponsible distortions, which deserve the utmost condemnation."

In the last few weeks the German nation has been in the throes of a tremendous political upheaval, the statement said, and political reprisals and excesses have occurred, also against Jews, but the efforts of the state and national governments to restore order and Chancellor Adolf Hitler's order to his Nazi followers to put an end to individual action have been effective, the Central union asserted.

The statement expressed concern at "recent plainly discernible anti-Semitic purposes in various economic and public spheres," but held that it was purely a domestic concern of Germany to combat these purposes.

German Jews, the statement continued, will not be deprived of equality of rights "which they fully earned in war and peace by the surrender of blood and treasure."

Reports in the Warsaw newspaper Our Revue that Louis Ullstein, Berlin publisher, was mistreated by Nazis before his death are absolutely without foundation, persons close to the Ullstein family said. Ullstein died here several days ago, after a long illness of gallstone trouble, and was buried yesterday in the presence of many prominent persons.

Jews in England Order Boycott.

LONDON, March 24.—Jewish communities in London, Manchester, Birmingham, Liverpool, and Leeds are agitating for an economic boycott against Germany in reprisal for alleged persecution of German Jews by the Hitler government. Many Jewish traders in London's east end have canceled orders to German manufacturers totaling thousands of dollars. They also are refusing to receive German trade agents.

The boycotted goods include hosiery, knitted wear, gloves, fancy goods, and cut glass. Many of the canceled orders have been transferred to British firms.

Jewish merchants are displaying posters which read: "Boycott German imports. To agents representing German manufacturers: Please do not call."

The Jewish board of deputies, representing organizations throughout England, meets tomorrow to decide on future action against the reported anti-Semitic campaign in Germany. A new organization is being formed in London to be known as the "World Alliance for Combating Anti-Semitism." The organization will demand

HOW FAR WILL THEY GO?

One Cent Tax to Be Charged on Nickel Buy

Details of the plan by which practically all of the retail distributors in Chicago will put the 3 per cent sales tax into operation were revealed yesterday by Archibald MacLachlan, chairman of the taxation committee of the Chicago Controllers' association and former chairman of the Controllers' congress of the Retail Dry Goods association.

Due to the lack of fractional currency in the American monetary system, retailers will tack on whole cents on unit sales of less than 33 cents. The scale which has been agreed to and which will be put into effect one week from today, according to Mr. MacLachlan, is as follows:

1. A tax of one cent on all sales from one to 33 cents.
2. A tax of two cents on all sales from 34 to 67 cents.
3. A tax of three cents on all sales from 68 cents to one dollar.
4. Above one dollar a straight 3 per cent will be charged.

Conferences on for a Week.

Mr. MacLachlan presided at conferences between Chicago merchants which have been held almost daily since the tax passed the house of representatives last week and its enactment became certain.

In explaining the plan yesterday he stated that the retailers realized that funds for the relief of the idle should be provided and were not opposed to the sales tax. The plan to be put into effect is the best method, they thought, of passing the tax on to the consumer.

Director Joseph J. Rice of the state department of finance is expected to announce regulations for collection on Monday or Tuesday. These will be rushed to retailers throughout the state on Wednesday so that they may have knowledge of the state's plans before collections begin one week from today.

Monthly Returns Required.

Returns will be sent to the department beginning April 1. The deadline for each month will be the 15th. Mr. Rice anticipates that heaviest collections will reach his office the last few days before this deadline, that having been his experience in collecting the 3 cent gasoline tax.

By the terms of the law, a sales tax must be paid on each purchase of all articles except gasoline and farm products that are sold on the farm direct to consumers. The funds will be returned to counties on the basis of population and must be used in local county primarily for emergency relief purposes. Downstate this returns will go toward lowering the general property taxes save by a two-thirds vote of county boards, who may direct the sums for relief purposes.

MRS. M'LAUGHLIN
WINS PIG SUIT
AFTER 14 VOTES

A jury in the Circuit court at Waukegan last night found Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin not guilty in a $10,000 damage suit filed against her by William Schroeder, a farmer of the Wheeling neighborhood.

Nearly a year ago Mrs. McLaughlin caused Schroeder's arrest on three warrants charging him with cruelty to his hogs and with maintaining a nuisance. He was dismissed on the charges and based his suit on the false arrest.

During the trial a mass of testimony was adduced by Mrs. McLaughlin's attorneys to show that Schroeder kept his pigs in a dirty pen and that his neglect amounted to cruelty. The other side attempted to prove that Mrs. McLaughlin was meddlesome and had no right to have the arrest made.

The case was given to the jury at noon yesterday. Fourteen ballots were taken. Nine early ones resulted in a division, seven favoring Schroeder and five favoring McLaughlin. The eighth ballot was 9 to 5 and the eleventh, twelfth, and thirteenth 11 to 1.

Charges Mate Struck Her for Jigsaw Extravaganza

Mrs. Margaret Anderson, 5539 South Fairfield avenue, pleaded guilty to being a jigsaw puzzle addict in a divorce bill filed yesterday in the Superior court by Attorney Victor French. But that, she contends, did not justify her husband's brutal striking her because she exceeded her weekly household allowance to buy puzzles. She asks custody of two children, Edward, 10 years old, and Robert, 2.

Society Girls Hurt as Autos Crash in Snow

A blinding snowstorm which struck the city and surrounding area late last night crippled transportation and led to a number of automobile accidents. Two society girls were bruised and a Glencoe resident was seriously hurt in a triple crash near Lake Bluff, and a boy was killed and a mother and child injured in separate accidents south of the city.

The snow was thick and within an hour laid a blanket an inch thick over the city. Visibility was particularly poor, motorists being unable to see more than fifteen feet ahead. The snow is expected to continue today with little change in temperature. Tomorrow may be fair.

Three Hurt in Crash.

The society girls bruised in the Lake Bluff accident were Miss Florence Otis, 2350 Lincoln Park West, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Otis, and Miss Barbara Senn, 1342 Astor street, daughter of Dr. William N. Senn. The man seriously hurt is Glenn Thompson, 442 Woodlawn avenue, Glencoe. He is in Alice Home hospital, Lake Forest, suffering from internal injuries and bone fractures.

Miss Otis, Miss Senn, and Paul J. Anderson, 5900 Kenmore avenue, with Miss Otis at the wheel, were driving north in Sheridan road, bound for a roller skating event at the Great Lakes Naval Training station, at the time of the accident. Miss Otis passed a seven ton truck driven by Harry Benson of Waukegan and moved back to the right side of the road. A moment later her car and a south bound automobile sideswiped.

Car Goes Into Ditch.

In this car were Mrs. Thompson, his wife, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Kleinschmidt, 2620 Deer Park drive, North Highland Park. Miss Otis' automobile went into the ditch. The car containing the Thompsons and Kleinschmidts swung head on into the north bound truck and burst into flames. Anderson, companion of Miss Otis and Miss Senn, helped extricate the Thompsons and Kleinschmidts. The latter two couples were taken to the hospital. Mrs. Thompson and the Kleinschmidts were out and bruised.

The boy killed south of the city was Edward Swanson, 10 years old, 820 Lincoln avenue, Dolton. He was struck by the car of Robert Brandman, 10747 South State street, Chicago. The accident occurred in "Dolton." This death increased the Cook county motor toll for 1933 to 185,014 last night.

Shortly afterward, an unidentified woman and a boy 15 years old were run down by a car at Halsted and 113th street, Thornton Township. They were taken to the Ingalls hospital. The car driver was Adeler Senne, Chicago Heights.

union, who asserted, her husband and seven other operators had been arrested and fined heavily. Her husband would have had, under the union order, to pay $4,000 for reinstatement.

Happy Over Settlement.
"Earlier in the week," Mrs. Oser continued, "Fred told me that Maloy had called him and told him everything could be arranged so he and the rest could go back to work. He hadn't worked for four months and he was so happy about it. He was supposed to meet Maloy at 2 o'clock today. 'Everything is going to be all right,' he said this morning."

Here Emmett Oser took up the story. His father, he said, left a little along they owned at 1449 North Hermitage avenue at 12:30 p. m. in a happy frame of mind and confident that all would be patched up satisfactorily.

Al Carlson, a brother of Mrs. Oser, said he met Oser at lunch time and left him at 1:30 p. m. in the top after taking him to a loan company to arrange for some ready money.

"I've got to get a shave and clean up before I see Maloy," Carlson quoted Oser as saying. "I couldn't let that fellow see me looking dirty."

Carlson said he picked up Oser's overcoat in the loan office and helped him into it. There was, he said, no pistol in the coat.

Another witness, whose name was withheld, asserted that he left Oser in the building at 506 South Wabash avenue, that he appeared happy and confident his long out of work period was over. This was at 2:30 p. m.

This witness also declared Oser had no pistol.

Bring U. S. Court Action.
Oser and seven others, members of the union, went into federal court last November and asked that Maloy, O'Hara, and Thomas Reynolds, the president, be removed from active control of the union, and that they be restrained from handling its funds.

This was tossed out of the federal court for lack of jurisdiction. Oser and his friends next appealed to the International Operators' union for redress and were denied it.

The rebels then carried their fight on in the state courts. An application for an injunction to restrain the management from enforcing the expulsion was asked of Judge Denis Sullivan, who transferred the matter to Judge John P. McGorty. Their plea was denied, but an amended petition had been filed and is waiting on the call of Judge William J. Lindsey.

Charge Looting of Union.
Oser and his friends charged looting of the treasury and assignment of jobs to temporary union workers who were forced to pay a larger percentage than usual to the union treasury.

Mrs. Oser declared that since the legal action started numerous threats had been received by her husband. She added that their telephone had been taken out, partly to escape the threats and partly because they could not afford it while Oser was out working. Her husband, she said, sold a safety device for moving picture operators in his little shop.

Capt. Daniel Gilbert of the state's attorney's office ordered all records of the union seized and promised a thorough investigation of the story of O'Hara.

O'Hara maintained his pose of calm confidence even after he had been taken to the detective bureau. The police took charge of the pistol with which Oser was alleged to have fired. They found that the numbers on it had been filed out, but were sure that scientific methods would result in these numbers being brought out again. Ownership of the weapon would be important, they pointed out, in corroborating or destroying the self-defense claim of the organizer.

Records Are Seized.
In conformity with the orders of the state's attorney's office, Capt. George O'Connor of the 2nd police district went to the union office and piled in all the records, which are to be examined in the hope that they will throw some light on the shooting. There

LEGISLATORS MEET MONDAY TO FRAME BEER REGULATIONS

Problems of state beer regulation which will be discussed in a subcommittee of the Illinois house of representatives' committee on license and regulation were considered yesterday by the chairman, Representative Matt Prans, Democrat.

Four major questions will be taken up Monday when the subcommittee meets in Springfield: alcoholic content of the beverage (already set by congress at 3.2 per cent by weight), the amount brewers shall be taxed per barrel or gallon, the dispensers and retailers' license fee, and what protections for schools and churches shall be set up.

The license fee is a troublesome question. Amendments to be considered include one to raise the $200 fee, now set for Cook county, to $300, and increase the $100 domestic fee to $200.

A manufacturers' tax of one or two cents per gallon—or perhaps $1 per barrel—is also pending.

There have been rumors that Oser was attempting to organize a new union. Correspondence on this, if any is found, is to be closely scanned.

Former Maloy Foe Slain.
Miss Russell and the others who were in the outer office were released after being questioned at the detective bureau.

O'Hara, it was announced, will be held for the inquest today.

Oser was not the first foe of the Maloy-O'Hara regime to die by bullets. In June, 1931, Jacob Kaufman, veteran member of the union, who had tried to have Maloy ousted, was shot and killed in a garage at 5525 Princeton avenue.

An investigation of the union affairs was made and on July 15 the grand jury voted true bills charging Maloy, O'Hara, Reynolds, Emmett Quinn, and three other persons with conspiracy.

One of these others was Joseph Maloy, brother of Thomas, who held the post of city examiner of motion picture operators under an appointment by the previous mayor's administration.

Case Stricken from Docket.
On Dec. 1, 1931, the case was called before Judge John Prystalski. The defense announced readiness for trial, but Assistant State's Attorney Charles Lounsbury declared that some of his witnesses were absent and that "the men who urged this indictment have told us the situation leading to the indictment has been adjusted amicably." Therefore Mr. Lounsbury asked that the case be stricken off with leave to reinstate.

Judge Prystalski criticized the state's attorney's (Swanson's) office severely for failure to prosecute after the grand jury had indicted, but obeyed the state's request and the matter ended. The "situation" referred to by the prosecutor grew out of a strike called by the Maloy outfit against small picture houses and the owners fighting back by importing their own nonunion men. There were a number of slappings and bombings during the strike period. Peace was brought between owners and operators by the intervention of Mayor Cermak.

It has been alleged that Maloy received $10,000 a month and O'Hara $150 a week for their services to the union. Charges have been made that the body was racketeering and taking all the traffic would bear from the operators and at the same time squeezing the theater owners so thoroughly that many have had to close their show houses.

APRIL 7 WHOOPEE TO PERIL REPEAL, LEADERS WARN

Ask Public to Avoid Rioting and Drunkenness.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
Warning against a big beer celebration on April 7 was issued yesterday by the Illinois representatives of four national wet organizations which are seeking repeal of the 18th amendment. They are against such a demonstration on grounds of temperance and because of its possible political effect. Their expressions are as follows:

Mrs. Leslie Wheeler and Mrs. William H. Mitchell, co-chairmen of Illinois division of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform:

"The women's organization is very much opposed to any celebration on April 7. This organization has always worked for temperance, and we feel that the eyes of the American people will be on us this day. We strongly urge all our members and the women in sympathy with our work to use their influence in discouraging any form of excess or riotous celebration at this time, when the manufacture, transportation, and sale of beer has again been legalized.

Urges Regulatory Laws.
"We feel it is up to every one of our 24,000 members in Illinois to use their strongest influence to accept this matter as the first step toward repeal with gratitude, and with the earnestly desired temperance for which we have worked, are working, and will continue to work. This organization strongly urges the Illinois legislature to pass adequately regulatory enactments for the control of the manufacture and distribution of beer. Much harm could be done to the cause of the repeal of the 18th amendment if a few thoughtless people turn this occasion into an uncalculated celebration."

Ralph M. Shaw, chairman of the Illinois division of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, feels so strongly on this that he would have the legislature pass a measure prohibiting the transportation of beer after 11 o'clock at night. This would halt the fleet of trucks that will be waiting at the breweries on the night of April 6.

Little Sympathy, Says Shaw.
"The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment has little sympathy with the celebration which it is alleged is to be promoted by certain individuals and corporations on the seventh day of April because the manufacture, transportation, and sale of beer has again become legalized," Mr. Shaw said.

"For fourteen years this association has been earnestly engaged in endeavoring to restore to the American people the liberty of which they have been deprived by flimflam and hypocrisy and to restore to the state and to the nation much needed revenue. We have only partly succeeded.

Much work yet remains to be done," he continued.

"This association thinks that the partial restoration of the rights of the citizens should be received, with thanksgiving and gratitude, with solemnity rather than hilarity and hubbalooboo. If a few brainless enthusiasts should use illicit gin and whiskey on the morning of April 7 and turn the city into pandemonium, which they might easily do, or if they should be encouraged to indulge in any excesses by short-sighted manufacturers and dealers, the Anti-Saloon league and others will charge it up against the millions of earnest citizens who believe that the amendment should be repealed."

Hopes for Speedy Action.
"We hope that before April 7 the Illinois legislature will have passed such regulatory legislation as will discourage any absurd demonstration such as has been prophesied."

Col. Ira D. Reeves, manager west central division of the Crusaders: "The attempt to make a holiday of the day when beer may be legally sold is most regrettable. It would be much more consistent if we thanked God that we had recovered at least part of our lost liberty."

"The return of legal beer should be accepted in a perfectly normal way. Unfortunately the plans being made by hotels and other places to make a carnival day of it will be misunderstood. Every one who knows what is going on in this world knows that the bootleggers and gangsters will be more than active in their sales of gin and adulterated spirituous liquors in order to discredit the legal sale of beer, now that the beer runners will likely be eliminated. Any effort at making a carnival day out of legalized beer will be taken advantage of by the bootleggers as well as the drys to further perpetuate the 18th amendment. Every case of drunkenness from now on will be blamed on legal beer."

"The public should realize that the legalization of beer will not eliminate the bootlegger, for as long as the 18th amendment is part of our constitution the bootlegger will prosper. During the prohibition era America has become a nation of hard liquor drinkers and the people have lost much of their taste for beer. The demand for hard liquor will continue and the bootlegger will continue to supply it as long as the 18th amendment remains."

A. D. Plamondon, Illinois chairman of the National Association Opposed to Prohibition: "After April 7 beer will have to take the blame for everything. All drunkenness will be blamed on beer. That will be the excuse people will give. If this goes on the chances for repeal of the 18th amendment will become much less. I am against this proposed celebration. People will not wait until 11 o'clock. They will get drunk on gin and whiskey in the meantime. Then beer will have to take the fall for it."

HAVANA, March 24.—Aristide Betancourt, a United States citizen who was held incommunicado in Cuban jails for more than seven months, was released yesterday following an appeal to the United States embassy. He communicated with the United States embassy through a letter smuggled out of Principe fortress.

3.2% BREW IS PERFECT BEER, SAYS AN EXPERT

Health Giving Qualities Are Listed.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.
While brewery employees hustled about yesterday in preparation for the advent of 3.2 beer on April 7, attention was directed by the Wahl-Henius Institute of Fermentology to the "wholesome and health-giving" qualities of the beverage.

"The drink that is thought to have had its birth more than 4,000 years ago in Egypt, will be given to America in its perfect form, according to Dr. Mrs. Henius, head of the institute. Dr. Henius, who has devoted nearly 50 years as a chemist to the work of improving malt drinks, explained that the product of 3.2 per cent alcoholic content by weight is the perfect beer, and will satisfy the popular demand without endangering temperance and sobriety."

A Drink, Not a Drug.
"In fact, many European countries, especially the Scandinavian countries, have preferred 3.2 per cent beer," he said. "When people want beer they want a refreshing drink, not a drug."

In language that a housewife would understand, Dr. Henius described the contents of beer. During the ages, since the Egyptian civilization began, the drink has developed from two sources, the ale type, where the yeast rises to the top, and the lager beer, where it descends to the bottom. The yeast in the ale type, he explained, is the same as the housewife uses in making bread.

"The three essentials used in the production of beers, both ale and lager," Dr. Henius continued, "are the malt made from barley, which is allowed to sprout and then is dried; hops, the dried ripe cones of a vine which give the fine flavor and has a preserving influence, and third, water."

Making Beer Paler.
"In order to make beer paler, a small part of the malt is often replaced by hulled rice or grits, which are made from de-germinated or oil-free white flaked corn. But both rice and grits are starch with no soluble albumin. Barley is composed of starch, albumin and mineral salts, with phosphate predominating. It is a raw starch modified in the mashing process by enzymes, which change the starch into sugar. No good beer can be made without barley, but both rice and grits are used extensively in this country in the making of beer, although much of the malt is made from barley exclusively."

It is estimated that 3,000,000 more acres will have to be devoted to barley in this country if consumption of the new beer approaches the 1915 figure, when 30,000,000 bushels of barley were used. A rise in the hop market has been noted since the passage of the beer law.

HOLDS 3.2 BEER IS SODA WATER IN EYES OF LAW

Kerner Emphasizes Fact It's Nonintoxicating.

State and city officials decided unofficially yesterday to regard the 3.2 beer as nonintoxicating, and as not coming under the terms of whatever regulatory laws are still in force. Attorney General Kerner gave his opinion on the subject as acting Mayor Frank J. Corcoran presided at a conference of city officials on the drafting of city ordinances governing the traffic and on recommendations to the state legislature.

Attorney General Kerner was besieged by requests from all over the state for opinions as to what procedure should be adopted by local enforcement officers. Without giving a specific reply to any request, Attorney General Kerner placed 3.2 beer in the same category as soda water and ginger ale.

Suggests Tentative Policy.

The chief law officer of the state suggested the acceptance of this opinion by all concerned until such time as the courts decide the various problems arising from 3.2 beer. His reasoning was that beer authorized by congress can be considered as non-intoxicating inasmuch as the 15th amendment, which is part of the law of the land, forbids the sale of intoxicating liquors and congress has the power to say what does or does not come under the provisions of the constitution.

Since the 15th amendment permits congress to authorize beer and wine, the attorney general said, it operates also to permit the sale of the same beer and light wine in states, counties, and cities, notwithstanding the fact some of these subdivisions have dry laws still in force. Whatever powers the local communities have to regulate the sale of soda water and ginger ale or license or tax those businesses they have in regard to 3.2 beer, he said.

State and City at Odds.

The question of tax and license is one in which the state and the city of Chicago were not in accord yesterday. Neither has yet passed the tax to be assessed, but the city, in anticipation of the legalization of beer, provided for its sale under a beverage license costing $200 a year, but as yet has not set a license figure for breweries or wholesalers. The state is contemplating a tax of 1 cent a gallon or perhaps $1 a barrel of 31 gallons in addition to the sales tax.

During the conference Collector Kandi said that he had 2,246 applications for licenses to date. Many department stores have applied for licenses, he said, but some do not intend to sell beer, even though they have licenses.

Numerous Officials Attend.

The conference in the mayor's office devoted much of its time to the tax and license question. Those present besides Acting Mayor Corcoran were Corporation Counsel William H. Sexton, Dr. Herman N. Bunsen, president of the board of health; Commissioner of Public Works Oscar E. Hewitt, City Clerk Peter J. Brady, City Collector Edward J. Kandi, Controller M. S. Smyczek, Chief Justice John J. Sonsteyn of the Municipal court, State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney, Billie A. J. Horan, Police Commissioner James P. Allman, Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker, Coroner Frank J. Walsh, Recorder Clayton F. Smith and State Senator Harold Ward.

The following aldermen were present: Clark, Sonnenschein, Cronson, Wilson, Moran, Arvey, Williston, Rowan, Bowler, Landmesser and Quinn.

pealed. He stressed the immediate necessity of new regulatory ordinances to supplement whatever state laws may be enacted.

"The 15th amendment is still in effect and under it the enforcement is in the hands of the United States government," Mr. Sexton said. "I believe we should ask the United States attorney what cooperation he wants from the police department in enforcing its provisions. It is the duty of the government to interpret federal laws and not our duty to say what construction we shall place on them."

"But we would endanger the repeal of the 18th amendment by any shortsighted action. So we should give our best thought to the problems ahead of us."

Sexton Ward then told of the state's plans on legislation. Ald. Clark, who is chairman of the city council committee on finance, said he objected to the proposal that the state license beer dispensaries and give the local communities only one-third of the money thus obtained. He asked why the state wished to take that revenue from the city.

Calls State's Power Superior.

"All I know is that the state needs the money and will say, 'Let's get it from the beer business,' and as it has the power it will probably get the money," Senator Ward answered.

"What service will the state give in return?" demanded Ald. Arvey. "The city will have the duty of supervising and regulating the traffic. The city will be charged with responsibility and will have to furnish men and money in keeping the traffic in order."

On Ald. Clark's motion Acting Mayor Corcoran appointed a committee of aldermen to go to Springfield and discuss the pending legislation with members of the legislature. The aldermen present were named on the committee. Mr. Sexton then announced that many problems are being considered in his office having to do with what was formerly known as local option territory, and where there were restrictions against liquor "running with the land."

State Agrees with Kerner.

"We are now dealing with a malt product held to be nonintoxicating," Mr. Sexton said, in effect giving a ruling that was in harmony with the opinion of Attorney General Kerner. "We had sensible restrictions in former days and we should have them again."

"We should remember that we will be on trial when beer is put on sale," said Ald. Arvey. "The prohibitionists have been on trial heretofore, but now it is up to us to make the record. The public senses a change quickly."

KANSAS CITY HOTELS TO SELL 3.2% BEER AT FROM 10 UP TO 25 CTS.

Kansas City, Mo., March 24.—(AP)—The Kansas City Hotel Men's association today approved the following scale of prices for 3.2 per cent beer sold at the local hotels:

Eight to nine ounce glass, 10 cents.
Fourteen ounce seltel, 15 cents.
Nineteen ounce seltel, 20 cents.
Pink bottle served at tables or in rooms, 25 cents.

and the beer business must be so conducted that the public will not turn again to prohibition. The responsibility is on the city, and it is up to the state to give us sufficient money from the tax and license fees to enable us to properly regulate the business."

"We should insist on complete home rule in this matter," said Ald. Clark in reference to the committee's going to Springfield. Its members are to meet this afternoon to formulate plans and prepare suggestions for the guidance of the legislature. Ald. Arvey suggested that the leaders of Democratic and Republican parties be asked to help.

Confer on Beer Importation.

Another meeting was held in the office of Anthony Czarnecki, collector of customs, regarding the importation of beer. Among those present were E. C. Yellowley, in charge of permits for the manufacture of beer; Reinhold Keppler, attaché of the office of the German consul general; Stanislaw Jaworski, representing the Polish consul general; Ernest Marks, representing the Swedish consul general; J. F. Smetanka, representing the consul general of Czechoslovakia. As a result of the conference Collector Czarnecki sent telegrams to the bureau heads in Washington asking whether a permit is needed to import beer, whether an excise tax will be imposed, if a separate government tax is to be placed on the sale of imported beer, what labels and markings will be necessary for imported beer, and if beer can be landed at a port in a dry state and transported through that state to another state.

Always officials last night said the Atlas Brewing company had chartered a fleet of airplanes to rush cargoes of beer to the thirsty.

REMEDY SOUGHT FOR DOUBLE TAX BY LEGISLATORS

A two day session of the Interstate commission of conflicting taxation was opened yesterday at the administrative offices of the American Legislators' association, Drexel avenue and 58th street. A preliminary report on double taxation was made by Prof. Clarence Heer, tax consultant for the commission and research economist at the University of North Carolina.

The professor pointed out that several plans have been proposed by different authorities to relieve tax conflicts. One group, he said, recommends the separation of sources of revenue, a complete divorce between the revenue sources of the federal government and those of the states. Another group advocates making states and localities administrative subdivisions of the federal government in which taxes would be allocated on the basis of needs. A third group advises nationally administered, state shared taxes.

LINER CAPSIZES AT DOCK; THREE OF CREW MISSING

Seattle, Wash., March 24.—(AP)—The American mail liner President Madison suddenly capsized at her mooring at a dock here tonight, turning on the starboard side and slowly filling with water. One member of the crew was rescued from the engine room. Two others are missing.

As the liner listed at its moorings near the Todd dry dock at Harbor Island, 150 persons aboard clambered over its tilting side to safety on the dock.

Pharmacists Oppose Beer Being Sold by Drug Stores

Trenton, N. J., March 24.—(AP)—The New Jersey Pharmaceutical association will meet in Trenton Monday to ask the liquor laws commission to prohibit sale of 3.2 per cent beer over drug store lunch counters. "Sale of beer," said Henry T. Kahn of Trenton, president, "would lower the dignity of the drug store and interfere with the compounding of medicines."

Capital District Beer Bill Up for Vote in Senate Soon

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., March 24.—Dip leaders today appeared before the senate District of Columbia committee to protest against the passage of a bill legalizing the manufacture and sale of 3.2 per cent beer in the national capital. Their protests were attentively heard and duly recorded.

But before the last of them had fled from the committee room at the close of the hearing, Senator Millard Tydings (Dem., Md.), committee chairman, announced that the bill would be reported favorably to the senate before next week-end is over. It has already passed the house.

With repeal up to the states and modification already approved, passage of enabling legislation for the District, for which it acts as a legislature, is the sole remaining task of the national congress in ending the prohibition era.

Woman, Senator Clash.

Mrs. Henry Peabody, chairman of the women's national committee of law enforcement, a long time prohibition advocate, clashed in a bitter exchange with Senator Tydings.

Mrs. Peabody told the committee she represented ten national women's organizations, including the National Federation of Women's Clubs. The senator, disavowing any intention of contradicting her, asked if she intended to state that the club women's federation was opposed to the modification bill. The lady dry leader replied tartly that the president of the federation was a member of the executive committee of the women's national law enforcement organization, and that the club women in convention had adopted a resolution opposing modification of the Volstead act.

Mrs. Peabody declared that congressmen and senators had violated their oath to uphold the constitution in voting for the legalization of 3.2 per cent beer, which she claimed was the same content as pre-prohibition brew.

Senator Robert D. Carey (Rep., Wyo.) interrupted.

"You accuse congress of ignoring the constitution in passing the beer bill?" he asked. "Then wouldn't you include the President of the United States?"

"I will make no criticism of the President on any ground," replied Mrs. Peabody, "but I reserve the right to criticize congress whenever I please." Following Mrs. Peabody's testimony, Mrs. W. H. Wadleigh of the Women's Christian Temperance union arose to declare that action of congress to the contrary, "right is right and always will be."

"This is a crucifixion of the prohibition laws. It's like the crucifixion of man many years ago," she said.

"You refer to the crucifixion of the man who changed water into wine?" asked Senator Tydings.

"I mean the savior of mankind," said Mrs. Wadleigh.

"The same, I believe," countered the senator.

"You haven't the slightest proof that that wine was intoxicating," the dry leader declared.

"Nor," the senator replied, "have you any proof that it was not." While the drys wrangled on the "bill," postal officials downtown were ruling that beer, 3.2 per cent alcoholic content, may be sent through the mails via parcel post.

SENATORS SEE RUSSIAN THEORY IN FARM BILL

Regard Wallace, Tugwell,
Ezekiel as Radicals.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Washington, D. C., March 24.—(Special.)—Books about soviet Russia's experiment with a nationalized agriculture couldn't be drawn from the Congressional library today as the senate agricultural committee held its first hearings on the Roosevelt farm bill.

The books about Russian agriculture were unavailable because they already had been drawn. They were resting on the desks of senators and representatives.

The charge has been made that the Roosevelt farm bill, with its authority to vest the government at Washington with dictatorial powers over the American farm system, had its inspiration in the U. S. S. R.

Regard Three as Radicals.
The charge had its genesis in the fact that the more conservative group in congress considers the three top men in the department of agriculture—the three men most immediately responsible for the farm bill—as belonging distinctly to the radical side on economic and social questions.

These three men are Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Assistant Secretary Rexford Guy Tugwell, and Mordecai Ezekiel, economic adviser.

Senators recall that Secretary Wallace is an enthusiastic inflationist, having opposed the "gold-silver" "dollar" bill when it was pending. He also has come out in a current magazine article for devaluation of the dollar.

Senators listened today to the testimony of George N. Peek of Moline, Ill., farm implement manufacturer and former advocate of the silver equalization plan, and to John A. Simpson, president of the farmers' union. Meanwhile the senators were recalling that Prof. Tugwell and Dr. Ezekiel were interested visitors to Russia not long ago.

Edited Book About Russia.
Prof. Tugwell's books were as hard to get at the library as the texts on Russia. One book in which he was a collaborator was, in fact, a book about Russia, "Soviet Russia in the Second Decade," edited by Prof. Tugwell, Stuart Chase, writer and member of the Labor Bureau, Inc., and Robert W. Dunn, communist, writer for the Daily Worker and other radical publications. For a time Dunn was connected with the Russian-American industrial corporation.

Prof. Tugwell was a member of the technical staff of the "first American trade union delegation," shown about Russia by the soviet officials, and came back to write about their investigations. Prof. Tugwell's assignment was a discussion of Russian agriculture.

Learn What Tugwell Asked.
The only particularly applicable phrase which the senators could discover in Prof. Tugwell's contribution was the statement that the soviet government was doing something to remedy the disparity between industrial and farm prices, accompanied by the query:

"Can this be said of the American government?"

It also was found that Prof. Tugwell in his recent role as professor of economics at Columbia university was a

DAY IN WASHINGTON

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

President Roosevelt signed bill permitting nonmember state banks and trust companies to borrow from federal reserve.

Administration farm relief bill met opposition and support in senate committee hearing and Senator Smith (Dem., S. C.) presented substitute proposal.

It was learned President Roosevelt will authorize direct federal grants to states and municipalities to prevent starvation.

Chairmen of senate and house labor committees predicted redrafting of President's "conservation" bill, proposed by President William Green of American Federation of Labor.

Ambassador Lindsay formally discussed war debts revision with Secretary Hull.

Contributor to "Socialist Planning and a Socialist Program," a symposium of Socialist thought published not long ago, with a foreword by Norman Thomas, presidential candidate of the Socialist party in 1932 and 1933. Mr. Tugwell has not been confirmed by the senate for the assistant secretaryship.

Hart Stirs Up Interest.
It was Representative Michael J. Hart (Dem., Mich.) who largely was responsible for the sudden congressional interest in Prof. Tugwell's writings and theories. It was Congressman Hart who, during the house debate on the farm bill, read from the Communist Quarterly for June, 1929, a line or two of editorial praise for Prof. Tugwell for having advocated that "a planned system" be studied, not in the United States but in soviet Russia, where one is being worked out.

Those who read Prof. Tugwell's article on "Experimental Control in the Political Economy" in the Political Science Quarterly for June, 1929, found interest in his statement that "I think the difference between Russian and American concerns concrete objectives, hardly worth mentioning. The Russians want a balanced economic system which will achieve the Marxian result: From each according to his ability, to each according to his needs." They hope to get it through outright and open soviet socialized control, concentrated in expert hands. Americans want necessities for all before luxuries for any, but they expect to get them through the voluntary functioning of a liberal new system largely uncontrolled except by the laws of economics.

Russian Method Called Sure.
Prof. Tugwell believed the Russian method the sure one for obtaining that objective. Toward the close of the article he inquired: "And how shall we settle our irrepressible agricultural problem except by some series of devices as the soviet uses?"

Prof. Tugwell has opposed such suggested farm relief plans as the McNary-Laue plan as building up tariff barriers and leading to an isolated nationalism.

"What is needed," he wrote in the Political Science Quarterly of December, 1924, "is the statesmanship that looks across industrial lines, even across national boundaries, and legislates for the welfare of the peoples." In the Annals of American Academy of Political and Social Science, March, 1929, Prof. Tugwell, discussing farm relief, wrote that:

"On the whole it seems extremely doubtful whether integration to the point of planning and marketing is possible through any other agency than the federal government."

Prof. Tugwell believed that the concern of the government for other groups than agriculture might make interference in the farm situation the next logical step, and that the farmer's chronic demand for relief might bring him to through his independence.

once sufficiently to accept a national plan.
"This conjuncture of attitudes may just possibly give the expert his chance," Prof. Tugwell wrote. "We shall see the farmer's last hope, the good condition of good behavior—the good behavior consisting in growing these crops which seem wise in such amounts as seem desirable and, by such methods as social prudence dictates."

For Planned Agriculture.
It is such a system of planned agriculture that the present bill embodies with rewards for farmers who obey the mandates from Washington. Since it is a system of rewards and not one of direct commands, sponsors of the bill insist it is a voluntary measure.

At the department of agriculture any criticism of the breadth of power granted to the secretary is met with the answer that the secretary probably will not use all of it—for example, to license all corner grocery stores, or to make regulations favoring individually owned, as against co-operatively owned, stores.

Department officials have no estimate as to the number of agents and inspectors that would be needed to keep the farmer in line. They admit that they are trusting the farmers' innate honesty and to a system of publishing production figures in local newspapers.

Such publication, it is said, would make the farmer's neighbors the immediate inspectors of his obedience to regulations. The plan, it is said, is to extend for from two to five years, until such time as international agreements shall have opened up world markets and other world economic problems, such as the war debts, shall have been settled; trade restored.

Deny It's Socialistic.
The final argument in favor of the plan is that of the emergency. It is described as being, not a socialistic scheme or one to sovietize American agriculture, but on the contrary one to save capitalism from an agrarian rebellion, signs of which are to be seen in local revolts against foreclosure proceedings.

This last argument was advanced many times by Mr. Peek as he appeared today before the senate committee—where Chairman Edward D. Smith (Dem., S. C.) was urging his colleagues to accept a bill stripped of all but his cotton pool scheme, and a program of farm leasing to be paid for by a processing tax.

Mr. Peek argued that no plan giving the secretary of agriculture less power than was contemplated in the original bill could work for all the various commodities and various farm regions. He regarded the November election as a sign that the American people were willing to grant such broad powers to the administration.

Simpson for Price Fixing.
Much has been made of the argument that all the farm organizations were behind the bill, but President Simpson of the Farmers' union opposed it vehemently, wanting in its stead a straight-out price-fixing measure, such as that invoked during the last war. He contended that it was low prices and not high which led to overproduction, and the farmer was impelled to raise more at low prices than at high in order to meet his fixed charges.

Mr. Simpson declared the Roosevelt bill "would create 'monsters that will stink to heaven.' He cautioned that unless all employees under the bill are as honest as the secretary of agriculture 'there will be a scandal that will wreck the Democratic party.'"

"It sure is an experiment," Mr. Simpson exclaimed repeatedly throughout his testimony.
"The bill," he added, "includes another experiment, when you attempt to regulate ten million men, women, and children on the farm. It is impossible to regulate production by reducing acreage. Why, you'd have to have God on your side to do that. This effort to regulate production is doomed to failure."

C. E. MITCHELL IS INDICTED ON INCOME CHARGE

Former Bank Head Is Accused of Tax Evasion.

New York, March 24.—[Special.]—Charles E. Mitchell, former chairman of the National City bank, was indicted by a federal grand jury today on the charge of evading $475,513.37 income taxes for 1929. He pleaded not guilty before Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard.

Wearing a gray suit and topcoat, Mr. Mitchell appeared in court with Max D. Steuer, whom he has retained as attorney of record and trial counsel, and with Robert H. Thayer, the attorney who appeared for him at the time of his arrest last Tuesday night. United States Attorney George F. Medalla appeared for the government. The financier uttered the plea of "not guilty" in a loud, clear voice, looking directly at the judge. Mr. Steuer then asked the court to allow fifteen days in which to make any motions against the indictment.

Moves for Early Trial.
"That would be too long a time," Mr. Medalla protested. "I would suggest that the case be set for a week from Monday and put over until that date for all purposes."

"I can't conceive of this case being different from any other case," replied Mr. Steuer. "I am entirely unfamiliar with it, and I need time in which to prepare."

Judge Goddard rejected Mr. Steuer's plea, saying:
"Mr. Steuer, this case will be treated just as other cases are treated, and that means it will be put over until a week from Monday for all purposes. That doesn't mean that the trial will take place then, but that the date for trial may be fixed at that time."

Judge Goddard continued bail at $10,000.

Charge Income of $3 Million.
The indictment charges that Mr. Mitchell received a net income of $2,823,405.95 in 1929, whereas he reported on his income tax return for that year a net loss of $48,000, paying no tax. It alleges that Mr. Mitchell's income for 1929 and allowable deductions were as follows:

INCOME.
Salaries, other compensation.....	$1,506,185.05
Interest.....	140,105.47
Profit from sale of stocks.....	1,388,237.97
Dividends.....	202,874.40
Interest on Liberty Bonds.....	4,788.12
Director's fees.....	4,808.74
Total.....	$3,006,708.75
DEDUCTIONS.
Interest paid.....	$ 99,911.15
Taxes paid.....	68,708.70
Contributions.....	14,885.80
Total.....	$182,299.81

According to the indictment, Mr. Mitchell's income tax return was erroneous in that it reported a loss of $1,484,067.53 from the sale of stocks instead of a profit of $1,388,237.97. The difference is represented by a loss of $2,472,305.50 from the sale of 25,200 shares of National City bank stock by Mr. Mitchell to his wife. The government contends that this was not a bona fide sale.

One Count in Indictment.
The indictment contains only one count, as only one act of evasion is charged. The maximum penalty is five years' imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

It was learned today that Mr. Medalla had caused inquiries to be made into the manner in which Mr. Mitchell's tax return was passed at the time it was examined.

A $500,000 mortgage given by Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell on their country home at Tuxedo Park to Henry Sturges Morgan, son of J. P. Morgan and partner of J. P. Morgan & Co., on March 2, 1929, has just been filed in the county clerk's office at Goshen, N. Y., according to an Associated Press dispatch from Goshen today.

On Wednesday Henry Sturges Morgan filed in the register's office here a $500,000 mortgage taken in 1921 on the Mitchell's town house at 924 Fifth avenue, subject to a $200,000 first mortgage held by the East River Savings bank.

WAR AND NAVY MAY NOT GET AIR SECRETARIES

Washington, D. C., March 24.—[Special.]—Delay by the administration in appointing assistant secretaries for air for the war, navy, and commerce departments has caused expressions of doubt here that any of the positions will be filled.

The posts were created under Republican administration, those for the war and navy departments in conformity with recommendations of the Morrow board, which made a study of aviation as an instrument of national defense.

Since David S. Ingalls resigned June 1 last year as assistant secretary of the navy for aeronautics the office has been vacant. He said at that time that he did not believe it necessary to continue the office because the navy's air program had been completed and the service should carry on under the direction of the chief of naval aeronautics. Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, the present chief, will retire late this year.

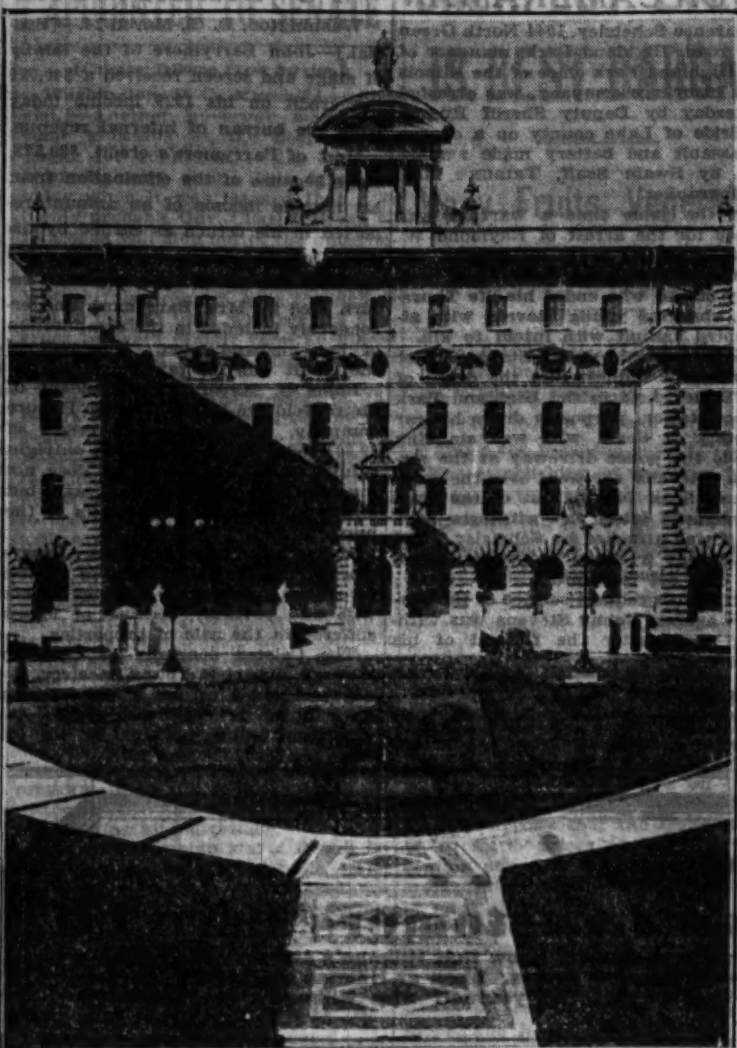

F. Trubee Davison, assistant secretary of war for aeronautics, retired March 4. Air corps officers are handling routine matters.

Jarecki Goes to Hospital for Weekly Digestion Upset

County Judge Jarecki was removed to a hospital yesterday for a week of rest and observation after he had suffered what his physicians termed a "severe digestive disturbance." The physicians, Dr. Leo Hardt and Dr. Francis A. Dulak, pronounced his trouble to be due to overwork and predicted that he will suffer no permanent ill effects if given sufficient rest. An earlier attack of stomach trouble forced Judge Jarecki to leave the bench for two weeks about two months ago.

JUDGE M'GOORTY DENOUNCES RED SHOE WORKERS

Superior Judge John P. McGoorty yesterday denounced communism, evinced by members of the Shoe and Leather Workers' union in the hearing of a suit brought by the Irving Shoe company, 314 West Superior street, to enjoin the union from picketing its plant and molesting its employees. Members of the union thronged the courtroom and threatened to halt proceedings several times by expressing disapproval of the statements of the company's attorneys.

"I do not hesitate to say that the Red International of Labor Unions, with which this union is affiliated, is opposed to our form of government and to our ideals of society and religion," the judge said. "The courts will not tolerate such a position. This is no time for communism, the Red International or other sinister foreign influences. I favor labor unions, but am opposed to communism and the Red flag."

The judge made his statement when several witnesses for the union declared they did not believe in God as they were administered oaths. The judge continued the hearing until March 27, with the suggestion that the union and the company adjust a wage dispute.

BIG MANUFACTURER ABANDONS RADIO TO USE NEWSPAPER ADS

New York, March 24.—[Special.]—Convinced that newspapers offer a more effective medium for advertising than the radio, executives of the Frigidaire corporation, subsidiary of General Motors corporation, revealed today that two-thirds of the advertising appropriation for 1933 would be allotted to daily publications and that no funds would be spent on broadcasting.

E. G. Buehler, president of the Frigidaire corporation, here for the spring convention of salesmen, dealers and others connected with the distribution of the product, announced that in proportion to volume of production the amount to be spent on advertising this year would be "much more" than in 1932.

H. W. Newell, vice president in charge of sales, was more specific in saying that "the very substantial" advertising program called for the expenditure of two-thirds of the appropriation for daily newspaper display, and the balance for magazine advertising.

It was also revealed by the company's exhibit in the Waldorf-Astoria, where the meeting was held, that definite provisions have been made in redesigned household refrigerators for the cooling of beer. The company is now producing 300 commercial units for beer cooling a day in its Dayton (Ohio) plants.

LONDON, March 24.—Lieut. Norman Baillie-Stewart concluded his testimony today before a court martial at Chelsea barracks. Questions concerning his relations with the young German woman, who received from him the sum of money he received from a mysterious "Marie Louise" of Berlin were payments for secret military information.

COURT TO FIX SHARE OF LIBBY HOLMAN IN REYNOLDS RICHES

Baltimore, Md., March 24.—(AP)—A Baltimore court was asked today to determine what share Libby Holman Reynolds, Broadway torch singer, and her infant son will have in the fortune built up by the late North Carolina tobacco magnate, R. J. Reynolds.

Suit was filed in Circuit court by the Safe Deposit and Trust company of Baltimore, trustee of the Reynolds estate.

The court was asked not only to settle the case of Libby Holman Reynolds, but it also was asked to make a decision in the case of Smith Reynolds, old's first wife, Anne Cannon Reynolds Smith, from whom he was divorced, and their daughter, the papers filed today said "the validity of the divorce of the said Anne Cannon Reynolds from the said Zachary Smith Reynolds" must be determined. The court also is asked to determine the "validity of the marriage of Libby Holman Reynolds."

Other members of the Reynolds family were named as defendants in the will. The total number of defendants was 79.

100 POLICEMEN
PARADE IN COURT
AT MURDER TRIAL

More than one hundred policemen passed before Jerry Kane, alleged slayer of Policeman Frank J. Cunningham, yesterday in Judge Harry A. Lewis' Criminal court, where a hearing is being held to determine whether his alleged confession was the result of police brutality as charged by the defense. After Kane was picked out six policemen and accused them of brutality three of them proved they had not had anything to do with the case. The other three denied touching the defendant. The jury was excluded during this scene.

The prosecution contends that the confession is admissible because it was made voluntarily. The bruises, admittedly on Kane's body and face after his arrest, were the result of a mob attack on the defendant by spectators who witnessed the murder, the police say. The hearing on the confession will be resumed this morning.

In another police murder trial now in progress Miss Catherine Stieritz, 28, testified in behalf of the prosecution. Her sweetheart, James Stewart, was killed in the robbery in which Harry Severino, the defendant, is charged with having murdered Policeman Martin Knudson.

A license to wed was issued in Reno, Nev., yesterday to Harold Sterling Gladwin of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Mrs. Winifred Jones Maccurdy, formerly of Chicago. Only a few minutes before the issuance of the license Gladwin obtained a divorce from Clara Packard Gladwin of Santa Barbara, Cal. Mrs. Maccurdy obtained a divorce from Fred H. Jones in Reno from John Thompson Maccurdy, professor of psychopathology at Cambridge university, England. The Maccurdys were married in Chicago Jan. 10, 1914. Mrs. Maccurdy's father was David H. Jones, millionaire president of the Mineral Point Zinc company. He died at his Lake Forest home in 1923.

LIFE INSURANCE OF R. W. STEVENS PUT AT $300,000

Creditors Expected to Sue for Share of It.

mond last night were seeking to find some means of paying the premiums. Claims Against Estate.

If the premiums are paid, it was pointed out, the $72,000 will fall to the deceased Raymond's estate at the father's death, enabling the receiver for the Illinois Life to levy on it for settlement of claims against Raymond.

These claims, for which the receiver has already filed a federal court suit, total $510,285. Of the total claims, $300,000 is on an allegedly fraudulent collateral loan, which Raymond personally secured from the insurance company, and $210,285 on a similar loan, for which Raymond tendered an accommodation note signed by George L. Douglas, La Salle street broker.

In settlement of these claims, it was learned, Raymond Stevens had offered Receiver Davis the policies on his father's life and title to his $250,000 Highland Park home three hours before he took his life. This offer, it was learned, was rejected. Ernest Stevens is also holding $72,000 of insurance on the father's life, but has made no effort to surrender it, no claims having yet been filed against him.

The impending lapse of Raymond Stevens' policies on his own life, coupled with the knowledge that these policies furnished the only bequest he would leave his family, may have been a factor in his decision to kill himself, friends of the family pointed out. His apparent inability to meet the premiums demonstrates, they added, that Stevens was at the end of his financial resources when he died.

Had Other Troubles.

Other grave troubles also were weighing on his mind, it was learned. While his friends are said to have told him he had little to fear from his impending trial in Criminal court and that of his father and brother for conspiracy to embezzle $4,000,000 from the insurance company, he was gravely concerned over the possible consequences of investigations now pending in the Federal building.

It was learned that internal revenue agents have been studying his income tax returns for the last several months. Stevens was not greatly concerned about this, it was said, but was worried over the activities of United States Attorney Dwight H. Green, whose staff has been studying the Illinois Life situation with a view to prosecution on a mail fraud charge.

His son, Raymond Stevens Jr., and his son-in-law, Webster N. Stafford, informed the coroner's jury at the inquest that Stevens had been melancholy for ten years and had frequently discussed suicide. Friends of the dead man expressed surprise at the testimony, stating that Stevens had always maintained a cheerful disposition and faced his recent troubles courageously.

Dependent Over Affairs.

"For the last ten years he had spoken occasionally of taking his life, but we never took him seriously," the son testified. "He had talked of it again recently and I think the motive was a dependency over his financial affairs."

Corroborating young Stevens' story, Stafford said he had last talked to his father-in-law on Tuesday in the loop at work time he was "as dependent as usual."

"He often talked of suicide," Stafford said, "but I thought he would never go any further than to wave gun, maybe, and shoot it into the floor."

Seeks Hotel's Stocks.

Attorney Franklin J. Stransky of counsel for the dead man's brother, Ernest Stevens, went before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday morning on a motion to intervene in the Illinois Life receivership.

The judge set the motion for the hearing next Monday. While the subject of the petition did not appear of record, it was learned that Ernest Stevens is seeking the reconveyance to himself of the thousands of shares of common stock of the Stevens and La Salle hotels, which he conveyed to the life insurance company last summer when the Reconstruction Finance corporation came to its aid. Ernest Stevens will contend, it is said, that he conveyed the stock in consideration of the R. F. C.'s pledge for a loan to the insurance company. The pledge, it is said, was not fulfilled.

Bank Attaches Assets.

The Central Republic Bank and Trust company, of which Raymond Stevens was once a director, took steps yesterday to attach the remaining visible assets of James Stevens. The bank has a $200,000 judgment against the older Stevens and has procured appointment of Frank McKoy, former banker, as personal receiver for the dying man.

To safeguard the bank's claims, Receiver McKoy sent bailiffs to the Stevens home, 1260 Lake Shore drive, yesterday and attached two Rolls Royce cars, a Cadillac and a Lincoln, as well as a $4,000 insurance policy which Stevens had been carrying on his own life for the benefit of his first wife, Jessie Louise Stevens, who has been living at 4118 South Parkway since their divorce in 1903. Stevens is understood to have paid her $1,000 a month until recently. She is said to be independently wealthy now.

The bailiffs also seized a $10,000 insurance policy, payable on Stevens' death to his present wife, Alice Bradley Stevens, stepmother of the two sons. They also found a number of leases, the value of which was not made known.

Private funeral services for Raymond Stevens will be held at 3 p. m. today at the home, with burial in Rosehill cemetery. Last night the elder Stevens had not yet been informed of his son's death.

ARREST STEVENS' AID FOR ATTACK ON CAMERAMAN

Clarence Schetzley, 1944 North Green Bay road, Highland Park, manager of the Highland Park office of the Illinois Life Insurance company, was arrested yesterday by Deputy Sheriff Russell McBride of Lake county on a charge of assault and battery made against him by Swain Scalf, Tribune staff photographer.

At the same time a warrant was issued for the arrest of Raymond W. Stevens Jr., 22 years old, son of the former Illinois Life Insurance company official who ended his life Thursday, charging young Stevens with attempted assault on Scalf, who was standing beside the police driveway at the station. Stevens' car went over the curb as Scalf jumped out of the way. A moment later, the witnesses said, Scalf was attacked by Stevens.

Witnesses said young Stevens, after leaving the inquest into the death of his father, held in the Highland Park police station, purposely drove his car directly at Scalf, who was standing beside the police driveway at the station. Stevens' car went over the curb as Scalf jumped out of the way. A moment later, the witnesses said, Scalf was attacked by Stevens.

At Scalf's request service of the warrant against young Stevens was withheld until after the funeral of his father.

DEWITT BANDIT STAGES HOLDUP.

U. S. TAX CREDIT FOR 1929 IS GIVEN TO BARRYMORE

Washington, D. C., March 24.—[Special.]—John Barrymore of the family of stage and screen received a $40,026 tax credit on his 1929 income today from the bureau of internal revenue.

Most of Barrymore's credit, $39,575, came because of the elimination from his taxable income of an amount reported in his return as earned by his wife, Dolores Costello Barrymore. This amount was taxed in a separate return filed by Mrs. Barrymore and erroneously included in the computation of her husband's tax. The rest of the credit was for taxes.

Louise B. Mayer, vice president of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Motion Picture company, also received a credit of $9,521 today in addition to an outright refund of $13,804. A credit does not involve the actual return of cash, but is merely set up on the books of the bureau.

Mayer's adjustment, like Barrymore's, was partially because of the erroneous inclusion of earnings by his wife and partially because of losses suffered in the sale of properties.

The Colotex company of Chicago, through Robert P. Young, receiver, today received a refund of $25,048 and a credit of $24,254 for a larger depreciation allowance against its income tax for 1926 and 1928.

START NEW CLUB TO OCCUPY HOME OF MEDINAH A. C.

Majority Group Breaks with Minority.

Marking a final break with the minority membership in the Medinah Athletic club, the majority group, headed by Robert J. Virtue, president, will start a new club today to occupy the forty-four story clubhouse at 555 North Michigan avenue. Both the old club and the club building have been in receivership for nearly a year. The new institution is to be known as the Medinah Michigan Avenue club.

Initial members will number 984, according to Mr. Virtue, who said this group constitutes practically the entire roster of former members, who agreed to pay the old prevailing dues of $10 a month authorized by the board of directors. The minority group, with about 350 members, had refused to pay more than 50 cents a month dues and is now negotiating to find quarters in some other club.

Ejected Under Court Decree.

Organization of the new club was effected under a decree entered on March 6 by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward, instructing his receiver, Paul B. Optner, to exclude members refusing to pay the $10 dues and authorizing formation of a new club. Receiver Optner had informed the court that the 50 cent dues proposed by the minority group would not cover the cost of mailing bills to the members.

The receiver announced that he would cooperate with the new club. The Continental Illinois company, sponsor of a protective committee for the holders of more than $4,000,000 of first mortgage bonds on the clubhouse, is also supporting the new club. Holders of a $1,000,000 second mortgage have approved the plan as well.

Formation of the new club completes the first step in reorganization plans which will assure the club a major position in the city. Mr. Virtue announced, "It is gratifying to the members to be able to launch this organization in time to allow participation in the many activities connected with A Century of Progress exposition."

LONG TERM PROGRAM.
When the present management and Mr. Optner first entered the situation the club was beset by depression difficulties. Taxes were overdue, interest was in default, and the club was operating at a heavy loss. The loyal group in the membership felt it

REPORT GOV. BRYAN MAY HAVE HIMSELF APPOINTED TO SENATE

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., March 24.—[Special.]—Another governor may soon come knocking at the door of the senate for admission to the nation's most exclusive club. This developed today when it was learned that it is highly probable Gov. Charles Bryan of Nebraska will step out of the gubernatorial chair and be appointed to the senate by his lieutenant governor. Whether this program goes through, said to depend upon whether the governor recovers rapidly from an illness that developed shortly after the November elections.

Gov. Bryan's appointment to the senate to fill a vacancy caused by the death of the late Senator Howell of Nebraska would be the second case in the present congress where a governor stepped from the governor's chair to become senator by appointment of a lieutenant governor elevated to the office of governor through resignation.

The first case was that of Senator Erickson of Montana. Senator Erickson resigned as governor and was appointed by his successor to fill the senate seat formerly held by the late Senator Thomas J. Walsh.

had not only a legal but a moral responsibility to undertake a long term program, with the aim eventually of restoring the club's financial status and meeting all obligations.

COMMONS HEARS OF TERROR REIGN
BY AUTO BANDITS

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

LONDON, March 24.—The most exclusive part of London was pictured as a place of terror by Commander Arthur Morrison, Conservative, in the house of commons today. He spoke in behalf of a bill for increasing police powers to deal with motor bandits.

"My wife, a most courageous woman, has frequently taken a car alone to France and driven all about the continent," he said. "But she doesn't like doing that in England after dark. These men come up in big cars, a man jumps out and snatches a woman's purse, and if there is the slightest resistance he deals her a crippling blow and makes off."

Unless something is done we will be reduced by sheer terrorism to the state that exists in some parts of the United States. Gunmen there never have been shot for, for the public will do what they tell them, merely from fear. That state of affairs is coming in this country."

BAKERS' BREAD, CHEAPEST EVER, IS BEST BARGAIN

Many Fruits, Vegetables Attractively Priced.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Bakers' bread heads the list of bargain counter foodstuffs being offered in the markets in Chicago and suburbs to entice the week-end shoppers today. The establishing of new low prices for bread in Chicago came hand in hand with the recent adoption of an ordinance by the city council which permitted baking concerns to sell loaves of bread weighing 8, 12, 16, 20 or 24 ounces or in multiples of one pound.

Lowest Prices on Record.

Earlier in the year many grocers were selling loaves weighing three-fourths of a pound for five cents. New prices generally effective now establish the lowest prices on bread on record in Chicago. Grocers indicated yesterday that the trend would be to settle prices at about 4 to 6 cents a pound loaf. Flour prices also are receding to pre-moratorium levels in most stores.

New arrivals in the local markets today include the 1933 crop of pure maple sugar and sirup, heavy shipments of spring lambs from Colorado selling at reduced prices in the meat shops, and heavy shipments of fresh vegetables and fruits from California and the Gulf states. Fresh tomatoes are coming in trucks from fields as distant as Utah to retail in Chicago for almost as little as during the early summer in previous years.

Veal Priced Attractively.

Veal cuts are featured at attractive prices in many butcher shops today along with lamb and bacon. Prices on radishes have been cut almost in half in 10 days, while celery and cauliflower are cheaper. Housewives will find the curly leaf spinach priced a bit lower than the broad leaf varieties. Strawberries are scarce and higher priced, a condition likely to continue for two weeks.

Trends of food prices, as forecast in the wholesale markets of Chicago, indicate that low prices will prevail until such time as food merchants are certain of the new state sales tax and the disposition of congress toward the farm relief measure sponsored by President Roosevelt.

Meat market authorities yesterday pointed out that the sales tax might

75C HOUR SCALE FOR MILL WORK CARPENTERS SET

Final agreement on a wage scale for mill work carpenters was reached yesterday by the Carpenters' District Council and the Mill Work and Cabinet Manufacturers' association as the result of a decision by Joshua D'Esposito, appointed as arbitrator. The decision fixes the scale at 75 cents an hour.

The new agreement, signed by Thomas S. Flynn, head of the carpenters' union, and James Nielsen, head of the manufacturers' association, will be in effect until June 30, 1937, and is retroactive to Nov. 1, 1932, when the old contract expired.

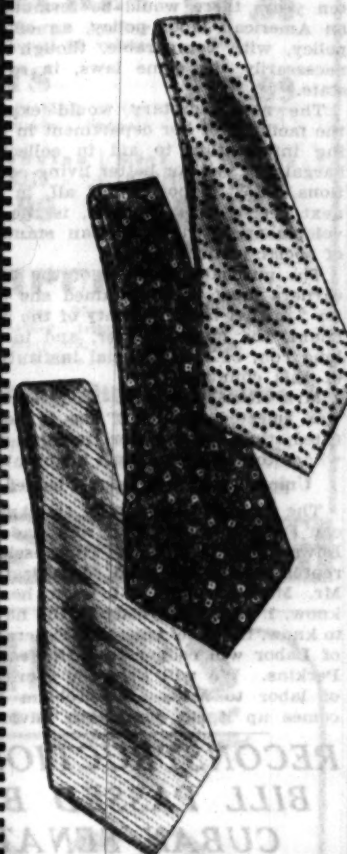

Pending the agreement carpenters have been paid 60 cents an hour, and the difference is now due them. Under the agreement which expired last November the scale was 85 cents an hour.

GERMAN COUNT FACES DEATH FOR CHAT OVER PHONE

Quoted as Saying: 'Hitler
Ought to Be Shot.'

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
PARIS, March 24.—When the lively Count Anton Arco Valley of Germany chatted with his best friend on Saturday, March 12, they were foolish enough to express their thoughts over the telephone. As a result "Toni" is in jail in Munich and may be executed, according to what was described here today as the true story of the count's arrest and "confession." The story was told by a citizen of Munich, who has just arrived in Paris.

The count's friend was telling him about Hitler's Nazi storm troops invading private homes. Arco became indignant and is quoted as having said:

"One ought to shoot that fellow Hitler."
Two hours later he was in jail.

Admits Making Statement.
"Did you say Hitler should be shot?" the minister asked.

"Yes," said the count.
"Would you do it?"
"Yes."

"Had you made any preparations to do it?"
"No."

"We do not believe it," the minister concluded.
"As a result of the count's 'confession' he may be sentenced to death under an emergency decree."

In contrast to this account is the official statement, which was made on March 13 following Chancellor Hitler's arrival in Munich, the birthplace and headquarters of the Nazis. The statement said:

"Official sources have revealed a plot for the assassination of Chancellor Hitler. Count Arco Valley confessed the plan on his arrest last night."

Faced Death for Murder.
This is the second time Count "Toni" has been in jail and facing death for murder. On Feb. 21, 1919, he assassinated Kurt Eisner, a German Jew, editor of the Socialist newspaper Vorwarts. Eisner, a partisan of the Spartacist movement, seized the reins of government in Bavaria after the fall of the reigning house of Wittelsbach in November, 1918.

[Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg in 1918-19 led the Spartacist movement, which sought to replace the military dictatorship of Germany by a proletarian dictatorship. Liebknecht in 1911 wrote under the pseudonym "Spartacus," leader of the slaves in the gladiatorial war against Rome, 73-71 B. C.]

Early in February, 1919, Eisner attended a Socialist congress in Switzerland and there "confessed" Germany's "war guilt." He accused Emperor Wilhelm II of precipitating the war.

"By making this speech I have probably signed my death warrant," Eisner remarked.

Toss Dice; Count Chosen.
At the same time Prince Rupprecht left his hiding place in Switzerland and returned to Bavaria. Officers of a Bavarian regiment met. It was decided that a toss of the dice would determine who should kill Eisner. The lot fell to Count Arco Valley.

The count shot Eisner on a street and was wounded by a guard.

On Jan. 17, 1920, the count was sentenced to death "without loss of honor because his act was inspired by glowing patriotism."

"I hate bolshevism," the condemned Arco Valley said. "I love my Bavarians and I hate the Jews. I am a faithful monarchist and a good Catholic. Above all, I respect and honor Bavaria. Therefore, long live the monarchy!"

On the following day the death sentence was commuted to life imprisonment by unanimous vote of the Bavarian cabinet. On Oct. 2, 1927, President Paul von Hindenburg pardoned the count on the occasion of the president's 80th birthday.

Jews to Protest Monday Against Acts in Germany

Chicago's Jewish demonstration against the reported atrocities in Germany will be held next Monday evening in the Auditorium theater, with Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland invited as the chief speaker, according to tentative plans made yesterday by a committee headed by Rabbi Solomon Goldman. Gov. Ritchie was invited after an effort to get Senator William E. Borah as chief speaker had failed.

Gov. Horner, Acting Mayor Corr, and both United States senators from Illinois are to be invited, and addresses will be made by a Catholic and a Protestant, as well as one by Rabbi Goldman. Rabbis Ephraim Epstein and Gerson B. Levi will offer prayers, and Monday will be observed as a day of fasting by Jewish congregations. Those arranging the demonstration, representing central Jewish organizations, are Jacob Siegal, Meyer W. Weisgal, A. Kalleh, Dr. Gerson B. Levi, Dr. Henry M. Pomerance, Rabbi Epstein, B. L. Sloan, Nathan Rosenberg, Max M. Korshak, and S. B. Komalk.

Conflict of Groups.
The organization meeting of Thursday night was followed yesterday by another argumentative gathering, in which the young left wing Jewish organizations sought to dictate to the committee what sort of resolutions to entertain and to broaden the scope of the protest.

The International Workers' organization claimed it was overlooked.

"This is not a Jewish organization," asked the chairman.

Raise Nazi Flag; Reds Riot.
AMSTERDAM, Holland, March 24.—(AP)—The German embassy here ran up the swastika flag of the Nazis today and police had difficulty dispersing a crowd of angry communists, who tried to remove it.

This afternoon a German resident displayed the Nazi flag outside his own house, but the police made him take it down to prevent a disturbance.

A movement to unite the Jews of Holland for the purpose of helping the Jews in Germany has been launched by a number of prominent Dutch Jews, including members of parliament and professional and business men. They have published a declaration urging Dutch Jews to refrain from individual measures, which it might result only in aggravating anti-Semitic tendencies in Germany.

Riot at Woolworth Store.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
HALL, Germany, March 24.—Disorders marked the opening of a new Woolworth five and ten cent store here today. A crowd including a few men in Nazi storm troop uniforms demonstrated in front of the store. Stench bombs were thrown. The store was closed temporarily. Several department stores also closed down.

FRIENDS RALLY TO SUPPORT OF FRANCES PERKINS

Farley, Mrs. Roosevelt
Talk at Meeting.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
New York, March 24.—(Special).—Fifteen hundred men and women, prominent in politics, social welfare work, and in organized labor, met at the Hotel Commodore tonight to pay tribute to Miss Frances Perkins (Mrs. Paul Wilson), secretary of labor in the Roosevelt cabinet.

Postmaster General James A. Farley called her appointment the best that President Roosevelt could possibly have made. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt bore to the audience a message of praise from the President himself.

The American Federation of Labor, which bitterly opposed her appointment, pledged to her its support, and its willingness to cooperate.

Tells Her Plans.
Miss Perkins outlined what she hopes to accomplish in Washington. She agreed with an earlier speaker, M. B. Folson of the Eastman Kodak company, that there was need for uniformity in the laws of the various states, so that industries would not leave one state for another where labor restrictions were less severe.

She said she hoped that in the next ten years there would be formulated an American labor policy, an official policy, with comparable, though not necessarily the same laws, in every state.

The new secretary would expand the facilities of her department in giving information to aid in collective bargaining and for better living conditions. Most important of all, in the next decade, she declared, is the development of the American standard of social justice.

The purchasing power of the wage earners must be maintained she said for "in that lies the safety of the merchant, the manufacturer, and in the long run, of the financial institutions of this country."

Mrs. Roosevelt said Miss Perkins was selected because "she is better fitted than any other person with whom the President was acquainted."

Union Labor's Support Pledged.
The pledge of support of the American Federation of Labor was made by Edward F. McGrady, congressional representative of that organization. Mr. McGrady said: "I want her to know, I want everybody in the nation to know, that the American Federation of Labor will cooperate with Frances Perkins. We will help the secretary of labor to solve any problem that comes up if she needs our advice."

BILL PASSED BY CUBAN SENATE

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
HAVANA, Cuba, March 24.—Establishing a record for Cuban legislative speed, the senate tonight, after less than five hours' debate, approved President Machado's national reconstruction program. The vote was 28 to 5. The bill was immediately sent to the house, where an overwhelming majority is expected for it tomorrow.

The seven-point program includes a new reciprocity treaty with the United States and a reduction of the annual budget from $50,000,000 to $28,000,000.

It also provides for a two-year moratorium on principal payments on foreign loans, a similar internal moratorium, an issue of $10,000,000 of silver certificates, an issue of $60,000,000 treasury "credit certificates," and a two-year moratorium for transportation companies indebted to the government.

GREEN, LABOR CHIEF, OPPOSES ROOSEVELT'S PLAN TO EMPLOY IDLE

Washington, D. C., March 24.—(Special).—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, today criticized President Roosevelt's restoration corps as "smacking of Fascism, Hitlerism, and in some respects of socialism" and objected to its proposed "regimentation of labor."

Testifying in opposition to the plan before a joint meeting of the senate and house labor committees, Mr. Green said he objected to it primarily because of the projected wage scale of one dollar a day, lodging, food, and clothing, and the military discipline under which the men recruited for restoration work would live.

Opposed to this testimony the joint committee heard Lewis W. Douglas, director of the budget, testify that the plan would not involve the sacrifice of ordinary public works employing labor at normal wages, and Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff, who assured that there will be no iron-clad military regime over the conservation corps.

Meanwhile, Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the American Tree association, sent a letter to President Green of the Federation of Labor and Representative Connery of the house labor committee, expressing astonishment that there should be opposition to relief measures that "pay a good American dollar" to thousands of idle men.

170 NOTED WOMEN

Washington, D. C., March 24.—(AP)—Women joined in the movement for the recognition of Soviet Russia today by the presentation of petitions at the White House and the state department urging that diplomatic relations with Moscow be established immediately in the "interest of peace and trade."

The petitions bore the names of 170 prominent American women, including Jane Addams of Hull House, Chicago; Ida Turrell, author, New York City; Cornelia Bryne Pinchot, wife of Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania; Ada L. Comstock, president of Radcliffe college; Zona Gale, novelist, Portage, Wis.; Pola La Follette, sister of Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin; Marion Edwards Park, president of Bryn Mawr college; Julia Peterkin, novelist; Lillian D. Wald, social worker, New York City; Mrs. Borden Harriman, Washington, D. C.; and Mrs. Marian Cleveland Amen, New York City, daughter of President Grover Cleveland.

A subcommittee of the women's committee for recognition of Russia, consisting of Mrs. Rosamond Pinchot Gaston, niece of Gov. Pinchot; Mrs. Margaret Cullis Banning, author, Duluth, Minn.; Miss Evelyn Dewey, daughter of Dr. John Dewey of New York City; and Mrs. Victor Blakelee of Philadelphia called at the White House but, being unable to see the President, she was engaged in a meeting with one of his secretaries. At the state department Secretary Hull received the delegation and promised to give careful consideration to the petition.

BRITAIN'S CREDIT PANIC OVER, SAYS FINANCE CHIEF

(Copyright, 1933, by the New York Times.)
LONDON, March 24.—Appraising the work of the national government in the last twelve months, Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, told an audience in Birmingham tonight that British credit was "so fully restored that the government is almost embarrassed by the amount of foreign money brought to London by people who felt it to be a safer place than whence it came."

From having slipped back to the position of the third exporting country, Mr. Chamberlain declared, Great Britain had regained the first position.

"Since we came into office more than 200 new factories have been established here with foreign capital," he continued. "We have invitations from twenty countries to negotiate new commercial treaties, which was unprecedented in the days of free trade, because we had nothing to offer in return."

UNDER GROUND

(AP)—After remaining underground for six days in a protest strike 700 coal miners at Kilmontow returned to the surface tonight. They put an end to the unusual demonstration after receiving assurances that the mines would not be abandoned but merely shut down temporarily.

The strike began Saturday and until Wednesday night the strikers refused to take any food. Then, on the government's promise that it would intervene, they put an end to the hunger demonstration.

Under pressure from the labor minister, Stefan Hubicki, the operators agreed not to dismantle the shafts and the governor of Kiele province personally informed the miners of this decision, promising jobs to all of them.

We learned from several sources that considerable alarm regarding present German conditions exists in the United States. We are in uninterrupted touch with the 112 German Chambers of Commerce in all parts of the country and can assure you that any alarming rumors regarding public disturbances and acts of violence are extremely exaggerated. Internal transformation and the great anti-Marxist movement have in general taken place quite peacefully. We are very much astonished about news of wholesale acts of violence against the Jewish population. No organized acts of this kind have taken place. Jewish business men continue unmolested. Exceptional acts of violence were strongly disapproved and energetically suppressed by the German government. Business is continuing quite normal. German people have during long years of great suffering kept calm and peaceful and still go on in that way. Calm views abroad would support and assist maintenance of normal political and economic conditions.

U.S. WILL HELP IDLE IN ILLINOIS. HORNER IS TOLD

Roosevelt Assures Aid in Talk with Governor.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER
(Chicago Tribune Staff Writer)
Washington, D. C., March 24.—(Special.)—President Roosevelt today gave Gov. Henry Horner definite assurance that the federal government will help to shelter and feed the idle in Illinois.

The Illinois governor, with Patrick A. Nash, national committeeman from the same state, visited the President this afternoon to make their personal appeal for emergency help pending the receipt of relief funds from the new sales tax.

"The President assured me," said the governor, "that his program in Chicago immediate financial help for relief work in the state."

Gov. Horner also conferred at some length with Senator Robert F. Wagner (Dem., N. Y.), who is drawing the administration bill which will provide additional financial relief to states which have exhausted their borrowing powers under existing legislation.

New Funds Promised.

Senator Wagner promised the governor that Illinois would be able to obtain new funds and he also held out hope that funds may be made available to the city of Chicago for meeting the long overdue pay rolls of its teachers.

Just how these financing operations were to be accomplished Senator Wagner would not specify. President Roosevelt has taken the position that if the local and state governments in any community have exhausted their ability to care for the helpless, the federal government will grant direct relief in the form of actual gifts of money from the federal treasury.

But Gov. Horner declared Illinois was not seeking charity from the federal treasury and wanted a loan, not a gift. The governor said that between April 1, when present relief funds in the state will become exhausted, and May 15, when it is hoped funds from the sales tax will provide sufficient revenue, something like $10,000,000 will be needed. If the federal government will provide a loan to meet this temporary emergency the state will repay it later, the governor said.

Plan Teacher Relief.

Senator Wagner promised the governor that the new relief bill which may be introduced as an amendment to the pending administration unemployment relief bill in order to speed its passage, will provide for additional loans to Illinois. He also indicated that the school teachers and other payless municipal employees of Chicago may be given relief under the terms of the bill.

Somewhat similar hopes were held out by Edward L. Ryerson, chairman of the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission, after conferences he held with Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins and officials of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

SUPT. BOGAN COUNSELS TEACHERS AGAINST PAY DEMONSTRATIONS

Twenty leaders of Chicago's 14,000 school teachers were called before Supt. William J. Bogan yesterday in connection with the demonstrations on Wednesday, when a delegation of the teaching force disrupted meetings of the board of education and city council with demands for back pay.

Mr. Bogan counseled against such demonstrations in the future.

The proposal of the superintendent was that a steering committee of teachers and school officials be formed to advise various groups who might be considering action concerning this pay situation. The committee, Mr. Bogan said, would guard against actions "not becoming teachers."

The leaders of the organizations declared that they had not prompted the demonstration.

"We are sitting on a can of dynamite," asserted Aaron Kilgus, president of the Principals' club, who attended the meeting. "Charles S. Dewey of the committee selling tax anticipation warrants to finance pay days requested that the teachers remain quiet while this plan was carried out, and the leaders are doing their best to cooperate."

Later in the afternoon 1,000 teachers at a meeting of the Chicago division of the Illinois State Teachers' association at 22 West Randolph street, voted to hold a mass meeting of the entire teaching body. The speakers blamed their payless plight on the Dewey committee. Sargent committee on public expenditures, bankers, and local public officials.

Horner took advantage of an opportunity to visit with members of the Roosevelt cabinet. He saw Interior Secretary Ickes, who arranged for the governor's conference with the President; Postmaster General Farley; and Attorney General Cummings. Tomorrow the governor expects to confer with Secretary of War Darr.

Nash with Governor.

Mr. Nash, the new Democratic boss of politics in Illinois, successor to the late Mayor Cermak, accompanied Gov. Horner in his travels about the city and he put in a word on patronage with Postmaster General Farley.

Mr. Farley assured the Illinoisians that when the time came for plucking the patronage plum, Illinois would be well remembered, but he added that until the pressure of putting through the legislative program for the "new deal" was over, no considerable number of jobs would be given out.

ARRESTS IN 50 ROBBERIES.

Aurora police yesterday arrested five youths believed to have robbed more than 50 stores and residences in Aurora and vicinity. The prisoners, who confessed some of the robberies, are Robert and Arthur Bretzke, Russell Williams, Martin A. Todd, and Edward Jackson.

NEW PLAN TO PAY SCHOOL WORKERS GETS UNDER WAY

Meeting in Mayor's Office
Discusses Proposal.

Measures to obtain pay for school employees were discussed yesterday at a meeting in the office of Acting Mayor Corr, attended by school trustees and city officials. At its conclusion Corporation Counsel Sexton said that a new plan had been formulated. Its details may be announced following a second meeting Monday.

It was said at the meeting that a subcommittee of the citizens' committee on public expenditures, organized to sell tax warrants, has received subscriptions totaling $14,000,000, and that an agreement that subscriptions were not to be effective until a larger sum of warrants had been subscribed for has been terminated by a new arrangement with the subscribers. If this is true the subcommittee will be able to call upon subscribers for their money as soon as the city can issue the warrants.

Need State Legislation.

The Adamowski bill, now pending in the legislature, would validate the election of Acting Mayor Corr and permit him to sign the tax warrants. This would remove the objection of Attorney Henry E. Cutler, expert on municipal securities, as to the validity of warrants signed by the acting mayor.

Mr. Sexton said also that Gov. Horner, who is in Washington, would attempt to obtain funds from federal sources for local public pay rolls. The tax warrant subcommittee has had two proposals under consideration for obtaining such funds.

Plan Trust Company.

One plan calls for the organization of a trust company which would take the warrants and post them with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation as collateral for a loan. The other, formed since President Roosevelt set up his bank rescue machinery, would have Chicago banks turn the warrants into the federal reserve bank, receiving on them the new federal reserve bank notes.

Acting Mayor Corr received a letter yesterday from James Armstrong, secretary of the Principals' club, asking if school employees might not buy their city vehicle licenses with pay assignments. Mr. Sexton gave an opinion that such procedure would be legal if the council passes an ordinance permitting it.

START CLEANUP OF MOOCHERS IN LOOP STREETS

Police began a campaign last night against professional beggars and moochers. Within two hours Sergeant James Quirk and his detective bureau squad arrested twenty-eight of them in loop streets. Four women beggars were given warnings but not held.

All but two of the twenty-eight were from out of town. Some were from New York, some from San Francisco, and several others from south of the Mason-Dixon line.

Visitors got a bad impression from being approached by moochers, explained Detective Chief Schoemaker. "The worst part of it is they are not our own beggars, but bums from out of town. Commissioner Altman has ordered a cleanup for the World's Fair."

TURKEY JOINS MOVE TO REVISE PEACE TREATIES

GENEVA, March 24.—(AP)—Turkey got aboard the treaty revision bandwagon today by demanding that the proposed disarmament convention abolish military restrictions of the Lausanne settlement.

The British draft of the proposed convention, which has been presented to the disarmament conference, suggests that Germany, Austria, Hungary, and Bulgaria be released from the restrictions of the military clauses of the war treaties. Turkey's delegate to the conference said that his nation's engagements at Lausanne constituted restraints entirely out of date. Specifically Turkey suggested abolition of the restrictions imposed with supervision of the Bosphorus and the Dardanelles and asked that the zone be demilitarized.

DISABLED VETS WITHDRAW FROM POPPY DAY GROUP

Refuse to Co-operate in Single Tag Day.

The Disabled American Veterans' association has withdrawn from membership in the Veterans' Poppy Day association, it was revealed last night. The Poppy Day association was formed some time ago for the purpose of holding a single tag day—generally in May—for the various ex-service men's groups.

Whether the withdrawal means that the Disabled Veterans will seek to hold a separate tag day this year was not made known last night.

Present a Resolution.

According to C. F. Faunt, president of the Poppy Day group, the Disabled Veterans last Wednesday presented a resolution stating that the proposal for them to join the Poppy association had been rejected by the Cook county council. He said that the resolution also stated that the Disabled Veterans would not join in the annual tag day unless they would be permitted to use their own emblem, the forget-me-not, instead of poppies.

On last Armistice day the Disabled Veterans held a separate tag day, selling forget-me-nots with the understanding, according to reports, that they would unite in the single tag day this year.

Ald. John B. Clark, chairman of the finance committee of the city council which supervises tag days, said last night that such a promise had been made.

Urges Single Tag Day.

"The Disabled Veterans should combine with the other veterans in a single tag day," he said. "However, if they have any grievances as to their treatment by the other veterans' organizations they should certainly bring it before the city council."

R. Patrick O'Reilly, former president of the Poppy Day association, and one of the organizers of the single tag day, said that the unified tagging system had been organized to avoid competition and annoyances. Selling both forget-me-nots and poppies would set up a competition, he added.

KOPPEL, FUGITIVE POLITICIAN, FAILS TO GIVE SELF UP

CRIMINAL COURT.—Sam Koppel, a west side Democratic precinct captain, who has been a fugitive from justice since last November, failed to surrender yesterday to Sheriff Meyer's assistants, Chief Bailiff James Gabriel of the Criminal court, who announced Thursday that he had confidential information that Koppel would give up, said he expected the fugitive to appear today.

Koppel was convicted in April, 1932, of attempting to intimidate a state's witness in a bribery case. He was sentenced to serve 1 year in the Bridewell. Following his conviction he announced an intention to appeal the conviction.

The appeal was never perfected and last November Koppel's bond was forfeited and his $1,500 cash bond was surrendered to the state. Since that time the authorities have been unable to find him, although the Chicago crime commission has received information that Koppel worked at the polls during the recent elections.

$30,000 VERDICT FOR MAE MURRAY VS. FOX THEATERS

Actress Says She Suffers Injuries on Stage.

New York, March 24.—(Special)—Mae Murray, the stage and movie actress, won damages of $30,000 from the Fox Theaters corporation in Supreme court today.

Miss Murray had sued for $250,000 damages for injuries suffered while dancing at the Fox theater at Flatbush avenue and Navas street, Brooklyn, on Dec. 1, 1922.

Justice Peter Schmuck refused to set aside the verdict as "grossly excessive," as the defendant's attorney termed it, but stayed execution for thirty days and gave the defendant sixty days to file an appeal.

The actress was employed at the time she was injured. She was dancing in the hall, and told reporters that she was glad she had won, "for the principle of it."

The closing hour of the trial proved a strenuous one for Miss Murray and she eventually left the stand, in tears and in protest against questions which had been leveled at her concerning a temporary disagreement with her husband, Prince David Mdivani.

Miss Murray charged that she was injured when, at the close of "a fast Spanish dance," her left foot caught in a depression in the stage where the sound apparatus was lowered beneath the stage.

CHILD TOSSED FROM WINDOW IN FIRE KILLED

Ethel Corpus, 12 years old, colored, was killed last night when her mother, Blanche, threw her from their fifth floor flat at 4061 South Park way when fire broke out in the building.

The mother was seriously burned. She leaped also, as did Felix Douglas, a Negro, to escape the flames. The two are expected to die at the Provident hospital.

Mrs. Corpus told police that she pushed her daughter out the window to save her life, thinking there was a fire escape under the window.

The fire drove out about 100 Negro families and did about $500 damage.

3 DRY AGENTS IN SLAYING CASE ARE SUSPENDED

Newark, N. J., March 24.—(AP)—Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock, national prohibition director, today announced the indefinite suspension of three federal prohibition agents from the Newark office in connection with a still raid in Madison township last week.

Woodcock said the suspensions were given "for violating the department's rule of using guns for self-defense only." Two of the agents, Leslie S. Tweed and Thomas P. Waters, admitted firing "in the air" during the raid, but Arthur V. Duff, the third agent, said he had not fired.

Tweed was released in $5,000 bail by Middlesex county authorities on a charge of manslaughter. Waters and Duff also were free under bail as material witnesses.

"Our action," said Woodcock in reference to the suspensions, "should not prejudice the Middlesex county authorities in any way."

$100,000 ESTATE ESCAPES EFFECT OF DEPRESSION

The $100,000 estate of Mrs. Eliza H. Walker, McHenry county pioneer who died in 1903, has escaped the shrinkage which most estates have suffered in the last three years, and is still worth the original figure. Circuit Judge Joseph Burke was informed yesterday by Henry R. Baldwin, the trustee. Mr. Baldwin was given authority to make various annuity payments out of the income of the estate. At the death of a daughter, Mrs. Nina Christy, now 72 years old, the principal goes to the University of Chicago and Lombard college at Guilburg, which recently was merged with Knox college.

The funds of the estate are invested in mortgages on small flat buildings and bungalows. Mr. Baldwin told Judge Burke.

"We made careful investigations of the moral risk of the owners before investing," he said. "Up to the present we have had a default on only one piece of property, which we have taken over and are managing."

77% OF REALTY TAXES PAID ON PENALTY DATE

Collections Only a Trifle Lighter than Last Year.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

The ebb tide of tax payments in Cook county has apparently stopped, but the substantial rise in collections of the 1931 levy, predicted as a result of the dismissal of tax strike litigation is still to come.

This became apparent last evening when County Treasurer McDonough's clerks finished counting the Chicago tax collections received on or before March 15, the penalty date on the first installment of one-half the 1931 real estate taxes. The payments amounted to 41.3 per cent of the total taxes due on the first installment.

This percentage is only a trifle below the record of the 1930 levy, collected last year, when 42.2 per cent of the total taxes extended in Cook county had been paid at the penalty date. The collections on the 1929 levy were 59 per cent on the penalty date, and on the 1928 levy they were 76 per cent.

$40,362,229 Paid Up to 15th.
George Hagenauer, auditor for the county treasurer, reported last night that the current city tax collections on the March 15 penalty date totaled $40,362,229, of which $35,825,650 was first installment payments and the remaining $4,536,579 was paid, principally by small taxpayers, on the second installment, which is not due until later this year.

Mr. Hagenauer placed the percentage of collections on the first installment of all of Cook county at 45.41, but to do this he was forced to estimate the collections made in the thirty country towns which are wholly or partly outside Chicago. Collections in these towns are in the hands of township collectors, who will not be required to return their tax books and report their collections to the treasurer for another week.

Mr. Hagenauer estimated, from preliminary reports received from these collectors, that country town collections will be $5,000,000 on the first installment and $3,000,000 on the second installment of tax bills. This would put the total of 1931 tax collections now available to various governments in the county at $49,362,229. Practically all of the governments will have to use this money to retire tax warrants issued in 1931.

Second Payment Due by July 1.

This is the first year in which the plan of collecting real estate taxes in two equal installments has been put into effect. The penalty date for the second installment is now set for July 2, but it is said that this will undoubtedly be postponed, probably to Dec. 1. If the threatened litigation over the board of tax assessors' orders reducing assessments on homes and small flat buildings develops the collection system may be tied in a knot until some time next year.

Meanwhile, the best immediate hope of revenue on the part of Cook county governments is in the collection of the 1931 personal property taxes, on which the penalty date is May 1, and any litigation over real estate taxes is unlikely to affect their collection. The personal property taxes total about $81,000,000.

In recent years there has never been more than a 70 per cent collection of personal property taxes. Collections on the 1929 levy now amount to only 82 per cent, ten months after the penalty date. However, Assessor Jacobs instituted a radical reform of personal property assessments for the 1931 roll, and it is hoped that this year's personal property tax collections will come in as fast as the real estate taxes, and perhaps faster.

First Personal Bills Sent Out.

The first personal property bills for 1931 were sent out yesterday in the city by Treasurer McDonough. They went to loop banks for various trust estates which the banks handle. Country town collectors started putting out their personally bills some time ago. All of the Chicago bills will be sent out soon, now that the labor of recording the last minute rush of real estate taxes has been finished.

Only a small percentage of the millions of dollars in tax warrants issued in 1931 by various governments was tendered in payment of 1931 tax bills. Mr. Hagenauer found. Total payments in the city towns to date include $3,627,357 in warrants. Of about $31,000,000 in cash, $15,000,000 was sent in by mail, the heaviest mail payment in the history of the treasurer's office.

Ex-Press Agent Accused by Boys Gets Probation

Arthur Lynch, former press agent for the Business Men's Fraternity foundation, was placed on probation for one year yesterday by Municipal Judge Edward S. Scheffer on charges of contributing to the delinquency of two 15-year-old boys. Lynch's wife, Amelia, who a few months ago caused the arrest of Mrs. Robert H. Bruce, then president of the Cook county W. C. T. U., on charges that Mrs. Bruce was over-friendly with Lynch, told Judge Scheffer that she was reconciled with her husband and promised he would "stay out of trouble hereafter."

FREED FROM JAIL

(Tribune Photo.)

Mrs. Lydia Rowland, 65 years old, 2182 Warren avenue, a chiropractor, was released from her cell in debtors' row of the county jail yesterday by Acting County Judge J. G. Van Keuren. Mrs. Rowland had been committed for nonpayment of a judgment for medical services secured by Dr. John O'Neil, 2148 Washington boulevard.

The judge allowed Mrs. Rowland to file a pauper's petition asserting she had no funds with which to meet the judgment. She was released on her own recognizance after promising to reappear Tuesday to put up bond and agree to a date for a full hearing.

In the Superior court a petition for a writ of habeas corpus was filed in behalf of another inmate of debtors' row. The petition was brought to secure the release of William Weber, 15 year old high school student, who has been imprisoned more than a week because neither he nor his father has paid a judgment resulting from an auto accident. Weber's release is asked on the ground that the insolvent debtors' act was not intended to apply to minors.

SENTENCES 2 MEN AND 2 WOMEN FOR STORE SWINDLES

Two women and two men were given prison sentences yesterday by Judge Thomas J. Lynch in the Criminal court for swindling loop department stores. The sentences were handed down during the Christmas trade rush last December. Another man and woman, implicated in the fraud, were put on probation for one year.

According to the evidence the gang bought and sold the stores after being let by check and having it delivered to apartments rented for the purpose in River Forest and Park Ridge. The merchandise was immediately returned to the stores after delivery and cash rebates obtained by the swindlers. Later the checks originally given in payment were returned to the stores marked "no account."

Mrs. Angelina Strucholde, 37 years old, was sentenced to from 1 to 10 years as leader of the gang. The others are: Charles Bender, 37 years old, 1 to 5 years; Mrs. Bender, 35 years old, 1 year; and Sidney Potter, 26 years old, 1 to 5 years. The two put on probation for one year are Miss Jean Bender, 21 years old, and Ladislav Bender, 36 years old, brother and sister of Charles.

Mrs. Otto testified that she received a fractured neck vertebra which confined her to bed for five months when a street car which she was boarding in December, 1931, started suddenly and threw her to the pavement. She and her two children have been subsisting on charity since the death six years ago of her husband, Claude Otto, a city policeman, she testified.

FAIL TO BREAK DEADLOCK OVER TAX REDUCTION

Board Won't Ask Opinion from Courtney.

County Assessor J. L. Jacobs remained deadlocked yesterday with the members of the board of tax appeals, George F. Nixon and Fred W. Brummel, over the board's order instructing the assessor to reduce the 1931 building assessments on residences and small flat buildings 15 per cent.

Assessor Jacobs held to his contention that he will ignore the order because it is illegal. He was backed by the opinions of several leading tax attorneys as well as of Corporation Counsel Sexton and Henry F. Cutler, authority on municipal securities. Mr. Cutler stated that if the blanket order were permitted to stand there would be grave doubt of the legality of anticipation warrants issued against the 1931 tax levies.

Won't Ask Courtney's Opinion.

Mr. Nixon and Mr. Brummel indicated that they have no intention of asking an opinion from State's Attorney Courtney, who is ex officio attorney for the county office. They were well aware that Mr. Courtney would probably prepare his opinion on the subject in collaboration with Hayden N. Bell, head of his tax department, and Mr. Bell has already said not only that the order is illegal but that the appeals board members might be liable to indictment for misuse of their office if they persist in their support of it.

Upheld by Two Attorneys.

One of the opinions was written by William F. Struckmann, Attorney Struckmann's last important contribution to the tax situation in Cook county came in 1928, when he filed a bill of indictment resulting from a seeking to bar the 1928 reassessment. It had been ordered by the state tax commission. Hearings on that case delayed the reassessment and tax collections for some months, just as attorneys have predicted the present order of the appeals board, unless it is rescinded, will result in a flood of new litigation and delays in tax collections. The other opinion was from Fred Homer F. Carey of the Northwestern university law school.

The little girl was found unconscious at the Britton home in February and was taken to the Bronson hospital here. Both children had been beaten with a bed slat by Calloway and Mrs. Britton.

CARRIED 100 MILES TO CIVILIZATION, BUT LOSES LIFE

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

WILLIAMS LAKE, B. C., March 24.—A fitting illustration of the camaraderie of the backwoods was shown in the journey to a hospital of an aged placer gold miner, David Hemmell, who was found paralyzed in his cabin on Ilwaco creek.

On an improvised stretcher he was borne by three brothers and a companion for three miles through Harney canyon. Two other men held the stretcher and stretchers, heaving, by ropes on one side to prevent their falling over the precipice. At the end of the canyon Hemmell was carried on a toboggan over the ice on Caribou lake to Kelthley, from there by horse and sleigh to Lively, and from there by auto to Williams Lake.

The total journey of 100 miles was made in the incredibly short time of 24 hours. Hemmell, who had been following gold bearing streams for half a century, died shortly after his arrival at the War Memorial hospital here.

UNIVERSITY MEN WIN PRAISE FOR THEIR ECONOMY

Further Saving Pledged to Legislators.

Urbana, Ill., March 24.—[Special.]—

Visiting legislators on their biennial inspection of the University of Illinois lauded President Chase and other officials of the university because they had "proven by economies of the past fifteen months that they are tax conscious," during talks following luncheon today. Senator E. W. Karaker (Dem., Jonesboro) paid the original compliment after Dr. Chase told how the university had economized during the biennium and how it was planning even further reductions for the coming two year period.

President Chase pledged the visitors that the trustees and staff of the institution would go as low as they possibly can in their request for state funds. He said the board had not yet arrived at its final figures, but that every one connected with the institution would go the limit in reducing its request, allowing only for the carrying on of fundamental work.

Work Is Commended.

Representative Mary Davidson of Carthage commended the work the university is doing with the youth of the state and hoped that nothing would "happen, even in the trying times during which this general assembly meets, to retard the usefulness of the institution."

Dean of Women Maria Leonard and Dean of Men Fred H. Turner are of the opinion that the college youth of today, generally speaking, are a very serious lot, they told the visitors. "Students are facing entirely new problems and the university is trying to do its part to instill in them qualities of high moral leadership and the value of clean living and high citizenship," Miss Leonard said. "No child can grow up twice, and every worth while quality we can impart to it, whether as representatives of the people or as university workers, we owe to it."

Dean Herbert W. Mumford of the college of agriculture challenged the popular idea that the function of the agricultural experiment station and the college of agriculture is to increase farm yields.

Acres Cuts Are Cited.

Largely due to the university's leadership, corn acreage of Illinois has declined 22 per cent in the last twenty years and wheat acreage 45 per cent in the last decade, Dean Mumford said. "We have been seeking better quality of farm products produced at less cost," he declared. "Agricultural adjustment has long been our watchword and goal."

The often repeated notion that farmers do not follow the university's recommendations was also challenged by Dean Mumford. Following the findings of the late Dr. Cyril G. Hopkins of the university, the first carload of livestock was shipped to Illinois in 1904, he pointed out. By 1924 800,000 tons were used, which meant the addition of $8,000,000 annually to the soil wealth of the state, he said. The legislature departed for their homes after reviewing the 3,000 students enrolled in the R. O. T. C. brigade late in the afternoon.

THE TRIBUNE'S PLATFORM FOR CHICAGO

1. Cut taxes in half.
2. Pay the defaulted bonds.
3. Overcome crime.
4. Speed up railroad passenger service.
5. Make Chicago the first city in the world.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

NO MAYORALTY CAMPAIGN NOW.

If our state legislators and political leaders will consider the wishes and welfare of the people of Chicago, they will find a way to avoid a mayoralty campaign and election at this time. In existing circumstances, and with the Century of Progress to be held this summer, Chicago is in no mood or condition to enter a political contest over the mayoralty. What the community urgently needs is uninterrupted progress in the processes of rehabilitation begun under Mayor Cermak and the opportunity to attend to private affairs. A campaign for the mayoralty would be a public nuisance with no benefit to the city.

We see no reason why in this emergency the legislature should not authorize the council to choose a mayor to fill out Mayor Cermak's term and validate such official action as Mr. Cermak has taken or shall take pending the council's action. If it seems expedient, this legislation may be restricted to this emergency, but even if adopted as a permanent rule for filling unfinished terms there would be nothing revolutionary about it. In some cities city managers, who are officers akin to mayors, are chosen by councils, and in the case of the suggested legislation for Chicago it would apply only when a mayor died or for any reason could not fill out his full term. This election by council would be a rare event.

In any case the people of Chicago should be protected from a mayoralty contest at this time.

TEUTONISMS.

Chancellor Hitler's declamatory outline of the Nationalist doctrines contained the statement, "In the future, high treason against the nation will be punished by barbaric ruthlessness." Other parts of the world must wonder when German spokesmen, discussing purposes of the nation and seeking to interpret German character, will learn the danger of expressing abhorrent sentiments in violent and inconsiderate language. The enemies of Germany have only to turn to the vocabulary of public utterances to find a ferocity of expression which they can use as they need to justify their characterizations of the remorseless force which they say Germany intends to impose upon the world.

The old Kaiser had a genius for damning his own case in the courts of humanity needlessly and tactlessly. He was wittily abetted by certain otherwise obscure German philosophers, military historians, and even schoolmasters. They presented Teutonic fury in terms which gave the enemies of Germany everything they needed to make their case.

Have German public men learned nothing from "the Hun" and nothing from the consequences of the philosophy of the blond beast and the thunderous Nordic doctrines which such men as Treitschke and Bernhardi preached? It was all red meat for Germany's enemies to spread on the table before an astounded world when the great war began. These German utterances had prepared the way for every bit of publicity which shocked other people into believing that the German was the worst enemy of mankind.

No other nation ever in its settlement makes such a case against itself at the very moment when it is asking for an understanding of the nobility of its aims and the dignity of its national position. Not even the realistic Japanese will permit themselves to display a regard for world sentiment when they state their case. If Hitler and his associates do not watch their words and their acts, they will have the cry of mad dog raised against them again, and a thought of the probable consequences can start a new shudder throughout an apprehensive world.

ELECT THEM AT LARGE.

There is the expected difference of opinion in the legislature upon the mode of choosing delegates to the convention to pass upon the repeal amendment. One plan is for choosing by senatorial districts, the other for electing all delegates at large.

The difference of opinion is easily explained. The state is gerrymandered and the gerrymander is in favor of the districts where prohibition sentiment is or has been strongest. If delegates are elected by districts the opposition to repeal will be stronger in the convention than if they are elected at large.

The arguments both of political justice and of public policy are all in favor of election at large. It ought to be apparent by this time, even to those who favor prohibition, that the imposition of the dry regime upon a majority of the people of the state is not only unjust but mischievous in practical effect. It has been proved beyond reasonable doubt that laws restraining private conduct not supported by a general public approval are not efficiently enforceable and result in grave demoralization. Except for dry zealots who will not give consideration to experience, it must be clear that a defeat of repeal by a minority would be bitterly resented by the majority and would make the dry laws even less tolerable than they are and therefore less enforceable. Prohibition repeal is a question which must have the judgment of the people in equal representation. We do not think even a gerrymandered convention will refuse repeal, but out of respect to the harmony of the people and to right principle the delegates to the convention should be elected at large.

It was, in fact, the intention of congress, when it directed that the repeal resolution should be submitted not to the legislature but to conventions of the people, that the question should be determined in accordance with majority opinion in each state. But election by gerrymandered districts is evasion of this intention and almost as unsatisfactory as submission to legislatures. In our state, which will approve repeal in any case, the question of method of election turns less upon practical results than considerations of political right, but these are important and should prevail.

THE FARM BILL AND THE DOLE.

The farm bill provides that the taxes to be imposed on the domestic consumption of farm products shall not be collected when the products are distributed free to the poor.

It would be monstrous, of course, to tax the bread of a family supported by charity. On the other hand, the exemption of their bread from tax is likely to have unexpected consequences. Wages in some industries are already so low that part time employees can live almost as well on charity as they can on wages. If the food these self-supporting people eat and the clothes they wear are taxed while no cut is made in the quantity and quality of food and clothing distributed as a dole it is at least possible that a good many who are now self-supporting will prefer a life of idleness at public expense.

Thus, the attempt to increase the income of farmers may result in a further debasing of the standard of living of many wage earners in the cities who now are certainly no better off than farmers or in a considerable increase in the demands on the federal government for money for relief in the cities, or both.

The matter of exemption of charitable gifts from the tax is cited because it illustrates the complexity of the human and economic relations which the secretary of agriculture proposes to upset with a somewhat naive faith that his good intentions must have beneficial results.

The secretary believes that by adding, say, a penny to the price of a loaf of bread and a proportionate amount to the costs of all food and clothing, and giving the proceeds to the farmers, the farmers will again be able to buy more freely and, in turn, stimulate manufacturing activities in the cities. He may be right, but if he isn't, or if the benefits are less than he expects, the measure which he is advocating can only add to the sum of misery in the country and serve to delay a general improvement.

The farm bill is thus a tremendous gamble; as such it ought not to be embarked upon lightly. A more careful study of the proposal and a much more specific statement of what Mr. Wallace proposes to do if his bill is passed ought to be prerequisites of any action on the bill in congress.

GRAFTING ON RELIEF.

Representative Emmett McGrath's bill to require all applicants for relief to make sworn statements was passed by the house last week and we will be enabled. The requirement is fair and should provide some partial check on the abuse of relief. That there is such abuse is known and in fact is inevitable. All practical means should be tried to restrain it in its various forms and devices. At best many will evade the most careful and conscientious administration, but the evil should be restricted as much as possible. The McGrath bill provides a general basis for the punishment of cheat and when applied in some conspicuous cases will serve as a general restraint, though it is not to be expected it will prevent the more unscrupulous and resourceful of grafters. However, it will provide a means of punishing them when found.

Editorial of the Day

A CENTURY AGO.

Back in 1823, while old Gen. Jackson was President, a condition of affairs developed which led on to a financial excitement, culminating in 1837, that was singularly like that presently observed in the United States. It began with a flurry of land speculation throughout the middle west, carried on by means of federal paper money, coincident with a period of federal prosperity resulting from vast selling of public lands. Politics was rampant, the main issue being what to do with the millions the government had collected, the surplus of which it was proposed to pay, or not to pay, to the several states. The United States bank having been forced out of existence by Jackson's opposition, after much squabbling the federal funds were ordered deposited in certain local banks that quickly became known as "Jackson's Pets."

These deposits were subject to recall, but before their deposit had even been completed the previously flourishing conditions turned suddenly sour and on July 1, 1838, the treasury department issued its historic "specie circular," requiring land agents to accept only specie payment for public lands. As specie was extremely scarce in the regions where these land transactions were active, the violent speculation was suddenly checked and eastern financial institutions with western connections, and few indeed were without them, could not stand the strain. This for the further reason that Europe also had run into panicky times and that in the south violent cotton speculation also was brought to a halt.

At this time, up there in New England, a certain Frederick Tudor, an industrialist of no particular importance, was keeping a diary. This later fell into the possession of the Massachusetts Historical society, before a meeting of which body excerpts were read last week, giving the reaction of a business man witnessing and wondering over the then-unheard-of condition in the young republic. The diary builds up the case from March 15, 1837, when "money is extremely scarce throughout the United States and worth on the best paper 2 1/2 per cent a month for six months," through reports of failures and unemployment, growing worse and wider spread until, on May 11, the diarist injects a headline into his daily report saying: "Great news from New York! A suspension of specie payment by all the city banks took place beginning yesterday morning." "It is, in short," he adds, "a revolution in business which in prospect seems more disastrous than anything the present age and generation have experienced." He comments, however, that "in two or three months the bottom and the worst probably will have arrived."

In fact, the bottom was struck then, and in a few months conditions had cleared and the excitement of 1837 was soon forgotten.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the guide tell where they may.

WE RISE TO SUGGEST that at midnight at the first stroke of twelve which ushers in the new day, the new era, the end of the noble experiment and the reign of terror, all individuals, bands, orchestras, radios, waiters, bartenders, policemen, taxi drivers, revelers, night workers, street car conductors and drivers, chauffeurs, and, in fact, everybody join in singing "Sweet Adeline." Watch the clock, wherever you are, and exactly at midnight pipe bravely up—

Sweet Adeline, My Adeline,

At night, dear heart, for yew I pine.

Even hall hath dreams (even hall hath dreams)

Yer fare face beams (yer fare face beams),

Yer the eye-dell of my heart,

Sweet Adeline, (Hold it, fellers.)

What a wonderful thing it will be. Millions of people all singing in happy union the sweet old song. No matter where you are, in a restaurant, on the street, in a taxi, lift up your voice and sing. And if you're home go to a front window, open the dinged thing, stand in the window, and sing. It's a grand idea. Remember, at exactly twelve o'clock midnight of April seven. Now, all together—Sweet Adeline, My Adeline—

TWO MONUMENTS.

Within our courthouse square there stand two monuments. One tells, with silent eloquence, how once a lowly country lawyer practiced here, Named Lincoln. Wrought in tawny, weathered bronze appear

His homely features, rude and rough-hewn as the stone.

Often he came from Springfield, homeback, all alone

Across the lonely prairies where our court convened;

Loafed at the tavern, or about the lawn, or leaned

Against the hitch-rack, whittling; keen in yarn and jest—

An ordinary, uncouth fellow like the rest.

It faces to the west, we think quite fittingly—

The stone that bears his likeness in the square—

For he

As yeaming youth and pining, careworn President,

Was always more at home where wood and prairie

blent

Their simple, homespun patterns, vernal gold and gloom,

Woven, like joy and woe, upon the West's wide loom;

For there was free and easy sunshine in his moods,

And the unfathomable melancholy of the woods.

The other monument is massive and unique:

A hundred years, or so, it lay beside the creek,

Beneath a moldering pile of ruins, overgrown

With moss and weeds and underbrush—a stone

Shaped like a giant wheel of curious design.

With corrugated surface, graven, line on line—

Hieroglyphs, preserving through unheeding years,

The annals of our country's patient pioneers.

A millstone, gray, that ground, with revolutions slow,

The hard-earned harvests of a hundred years ago.

It faces south, whence came those conquering

plebeians

Of early times—Kentuckians, Tennesseans.

For years those stones have stood there in the courthouse square,

But few gave heed to them; indeed, few were aware

Of their majestic presence, or significance.

Sometimes a wandering tourist gave a passing glance,

Sometimes a schoolboy, by his teacher urged, would come

And copy down their legends, as he did a sum.

What wonder they were seldom seen for, all day long,

They were surrounded and sequestered by a throng

Of cars parked at the curb. But not so many cars

Are parked and packed about them now, and nothing mars

The view of them. And now our people see and know

How our forefathers lived and labored long ago.

They see and know; and some, perhaps, may visualize

The little village, nestling under tranquil skies

On the vast prairie's restful, tree-embroidered rim;

And some, recalling Lincoln, catch a glimpse of him

Across the unplowed plains to westward, where

He rides out of the sunset on his ambling mare.

And some who loiter in the quiet, chastened street

May, from the millstone, learn the tragic tale of wheat

That once went to the mill, returning in the hour

As gritty, unrefined and dark, but wholesome flour,

But now afar goes wandering, paying toll on toll,

Till wasted to a petty, fragmentary dole.

And all may learn from both stones' calm and sturdy faces

That life, indeed, is something more than going places

Down roads of polished pavement in a speeding car;

That Paradise is not attained by roaming far,

But, as of old, lies near at hand—perchance as near

As when its bounteous garden blest the pioneer.

COLU.

BABE RUTH has finally signed up and now we can worry about other things. He didn't get the $50,000 he demanded, only $52,000, but he ought to be able to keep out of the poorhouse on that until winter, anyhow. Some people will raise their voices in protest against paying the Babe so much more than other tollers in the baseball vineyard, but you remember Napoleon said: "In war men are nothing; a man is everything." Which same goes for baseball.

AND EVERYTHING went along great until he got to the farm question. The only country we'd ever want to be president of would be one that didn't have any farms.

FOR FALLEN ARCHES.

ATTENDED a very interesting and informing lecture on the Greek islands in the Mediterranean, illustrated by both moving and still life pictures, that part of the entertainment dealing with sponge fishing had one lesson for the general public not especially interested in Greece nor in sponges. It was that fallen arches and weak feet are not a part of the Creator's plan. They are man's making, the result of man's application of that plan.

I would be willing to wager a Hoover commission against a doughnut that the Greek sponge fishermen do not suffer from fallen arches. Their feet are bare not only while diving but also during most of the time on shipboard. After a diver has put in his turn diving he goes barefooted on deck and there is a turn at pressing out the sponges. When sponges are brought up they are filled with "goo," assorted dirt, and other foreign matter. They are thrown on deck and the barefooted divers stand on them, heading out the foreign matter. The moving pictures of the kneeling spongers and the front part of the foot bending back and forth during the sponging act. The foot of a diver is about as pliable as that of a baby that never has worn shoes, probably more so, than that of a Jap or a Chinaman but less so than that of a gorilla. Nobody with a prehensile foot ever has fallen arches. When the Greek divers gave me an idea as to a method of treating fallen arches. It is for the sufferer to buy a large bath sponge, put it in a tub in which there is about a spongerful of water, and spend a half hour daily standing in the tub on the sponges pressing it out as the Greek divers do. To get the good out of this exercise a maximum part of the work must be done by the toes and front part of the foot. This exercise should be more pleasant than the often recommended task of picking up marbles with the toes.

The lecturer told his audience that divers are prone to suffer from the bends. When the water goes down in deep water and the pressure becomes great some of the gases ordinarily carried in solution by the blood go out of solution and form bubbles in the blood vessels. If a bubble of gas gets into a small blood vessel it stops the flow of blood to the area supplied by that vessel. The usual symptom of the bends is cramps in the muscles. But there may be almost any ailment. An incident on where the air bubble happens to stop and what tissues it deprives of blood. The effects of bends may be permanent. The air deprived of blood proceeds to break down after a while. If the gas bubble is slow about absorbing and the tissues have been destroyed repair may never be complete.

TOO LATE.

M. N. B. writes: 1. Can the muscles of a 22 year old person who was affected in infancy by infantile paralysis be developed? If so, how? 2. Would the children of such a person be affected or deformed in any way? REPLY:

1. No. A certain amount of muscle rebuilding is possible if done under reasonable promises and if carried out intelligently and persistently. This is not possible if the beginning is delayed twenty years. 2. No.

PROBABLY FATIGUE.

C. J. O. writes: Can I correct a twitching of a nerve in one of my eyes? This occurs about every hour. REPLY:

I judge you mean that some muscle in your eye contracts or jerks occasionally. 90 per cent of such cases the cause is fatigue. Perhaps you need glasses or, for some other reason, your eyes are fatigued. It is possible that you are overworked or overwired and that causes the fatigue. The remedy is rest.

WINTER ITCH.

W. E. R. writes: Two years ago I had winter itch and nearly clawed my legs off. After about two months of scratching I rubbed my legs with a hand lotion of glycerine and rose water. For the rest of the winter I was free from it and I have not had it since.

I am sure your lotion is a good one and helped you that first winter. But the effect of no lotion lasts two years. I suspect your feet are overworked or overwired and that causes the fatigue. The remedy is rest.

HOUSE WIRING. Chicago, March 20.—(Friend of the People.)—I am renting a bungalow over which the landlord has put a four room flat. He has wired the second floor himself, for which he allows me $2 a month for electricity used by the people on the second floor, there being only the one meter. He is not a licensed electrician and I understand has never had a permit to wire the second floor. The wires are not covered in the regulation manner and I am fearful we will have difficulty collecting insurance in the event of fire. What can be done about this? H. L.

The district inspector reports that in the building referred to the attic was remodeled into a small apartment. The inspector reports some unprotected wiring and joints are not soldered nor properly taped, no permit was obtained for the installation of the electrical work, and that the current used in the attic was recorded on the meter of the tenants on the second floor. A letter was addressed to the owner calling his attention to the defective wiring and requesting him to employ the services of a registered electrician to make this work conform to the city ordinances. The inspector has been instructed to follow this matter up and see that the ordinances are complied with. W. A. JACKSON, Commissioner of Gas and Electricity.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 25, 1917.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Having taken virtually every defense measure possible before the assembling of congress, President Wilson and his advisers in the executive branch of the government are concentrating their efforts to prepare for the more sweeping steps for which congressional authority will be sought. The final step in the defense plans taken by the President was his reported decision to call out the National Guard from some of the eastern states. This may be done tomorrow. Other units may be called later. The details of the steps to be recommended to congress are held in closest confidence, but officials let it be known that among the rest a general military budget, coordinating many items of expense deemed imperative, will be laid before the house and senate when the extra session begins April 2. During the day the council of national defense held a long conference with its advisory committee of seven industrial leaders who mapped out mobilization plans for the country's economic resources. The navy department awarded contracts for twenty-four destroyers, and called a conference of steel and other material companies for next in closest confidence, means of speeding naval construction, and the war department announced that failure of the army appropriations bill at the last session of congress would not be permitted to handicap the army's preparations.

COMPIEGNE.—The body of Sgt. James R. McConnell of Chicago, who was lost in aerial battle in the Somme sector on March 18, has been found in a small wood next the village of Jumy, on the border of Belgium, at a point where the fighting was the heaviest a few days ago. THE GERMAN CRISIS.—Brand Whitlock, American minister to Belgium, has been ordered to withdraw from Brussels to Le Havre, France, German violation of the "solemn engagements" is given by Washington as the reason for the order. Press associations have agreed to government censorship and will not distribute news tending to disclose military and naval policies of the government. BUFFALO, N. Y.—Officials of the Buffalo Chamber of Commerce today appealed to Gov. Whitman for a militia guard over the industrial plants at Buffalo, Niagara Falls, and Tonawanda. Pending the arrival of the troops a heavy armed guard was placed about the plants. This action was taken after the chamber of commerce had received information, reported to have been given to the city by a federal secret service operative, that a giant conspiracy had been entered into for the destruction of the Buffalo water works and the big industrial concerns in the three cities, especially those engaged in the manufacture of mun-

THE TREES IN THE PARK.

Chicago, March 22.—Early pedestrians on the Lake Shore drive this morning were all registering distress because of the havoc visited upon our beautiful American elms by the ice sheath that has covered them for days. Now that the weight of ice is melting and the trees are trying to rear their heads it is shocking to find how great a number have been "topped" or have lost much of their symmetry when large limbs have been ripped away.

It occurs to me that many trees a quarter of a century old may not be able to carry through the heat of summer unless some repair work is done before the

2 HUGE BUREAUS TO FEEL WEIGHT OF ECONOMY AX

Plan Drastic Trims in Trade Bodies.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Washington, D. C., March 24.—[Special.]—Two bureaus which flourished during the Hoover administration apparently are destined to be trimmed drastically, if not abolished by President Roosevelt. One is the federal trade commission. The other the highly organized bureau of foreign and domestic commerce of the department of commerce.

In the governmental reorganization plan, already drawn up tentatively by Roosevelt lieutenants, there is reported to be a proposal to dismember the trade commission. According to the plan now being discussed, the economic division of the trade commission would go to the department of commerce and the legal staff to the department of justice.

Set Up by Wilson.
The agency was set up in 1914 on the recommendation of the late President Wilson. Its purpose, as expounded by its sponsors, was that of protecting the American public and American business against unfair trade policies and monopoly.

According to apparently authentic reports, the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce is to be cut down from 100 divisions to four. Jobs for 250 employees would be abolished. Radical senators, especially George W. Norris of Nebraska and Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin, are expected to oppose the dissolution of the federal trade commission, one of their pet projects. This group successfully resisted the attempt in the last congress to slash the 1934 appropriation for the commission in half.

President Roosevelt has authority to abolish or merge such organizations as the trade commission.

Outline of Setup.
As outlined today, plans for the new setup for the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce are:

Reorganization of the bureau of almost 100 divisions, foreign and domestic offices and business research units into four divisions—foreign tariffs, regional information, Canadian and Pan-American trade, and domestic commerce.

A reduction of about 50 per cent in the 1933 appropriation of $3,988,000. Abolishment of all offices of commercial attachés, assistant commercial attachés, trade commissioners, and assistant trade commissioners in all but key foreign countries.

Abolishment of all district offices in the United States except those located in the 12 federal reserve bank cities.

Abolition of the present setup of 20 commodity divisions.

Abolishment of offices of two assistant directors.

Will Handle Foreign Markets.

The division of foreign tariffs will be concerned chiefly with the customs duties and other official costs and conditions of getting American goods into foreign markets and with foreign conditions attending the exportation of goods to the United States. The present personnel setup of this division numbers about 50 workers.

The new division of regional information will follow general economic trends abroad and will include in its setup the old divisions of statistical research into business conditions at home and abroad; the finance and investment unit and commercial laws. At present the personnel of these divisions number more than 100.

Plans for the setup of the new division of Canadian and Pan-American trade are interpreted to mean that this country is going to specialize in trade promotion work close to home under reciprocal tariff agreements now being studied by the new administration.

Representatives Abroad.

According to reliable sources, this division will also supervise over trade promotion work in Europe, the Far East, and Africa. It will have its own representative in London, Paris, Berlin, Stockholm, Cairo, Brussels, Melbourne, Tokyo, and Shanghai.

The division will also receive the co-operation of the state department's consular service in all countries, the consular reporting trade information to their department which will forward it immediately to the commerce department for distribution to American trade interests.

The domestic commerce division will be assigned to push development of trade in all sections of the country. This unit will have under its supervision the 12 district offices located in the federal reserve cities of Richmond, Atlanta, Chicago, New York, Dallas, Boston, St. Louis, Philadelphia, Minneapolis, Cleveland, Kansas City, and San Francisco.

District Offices Abolished.

Under the new setup district offices to be abolished will include Baltimore, Birmingham, Buffalo, Charlotte, Charleston, Denver, Des Moines, Detroit, El Paso, Galveston, Houston, Indianapolis, Jacksonville, Los Angeles, Louisville, Memphis, Milwaukee, Mobile, New Orleans, Norfolk, Pittsburgh, Portland, Ore.; Salt Lake City, Seattle, and Wilmington, N. C.

The commodity divisions, which are slated for abolishment under the reorganization plans, are: Agricultural implements, aeronautics trade, automotive, chemical, electrical equipment, food stuffs, foreign construction, hide and leather, industrial machinery, lumber, minerals, motion pictures, paper, rubber, shoe and leather manufactures, specialties, textile, tobacco, drafting, and exhibit.

CHOKING DEATH CALLED ACCIDENT.
A coroner's jury decided yesterday that Joseph Balofski, 43 years old, 1515 Wabasha avenue, who died last Wednesday night in a restaurant at 1501 Wabasha avenue, choked to death accidentally while eating.

JAPAN REFLECTS MACDONALD PLAN FOR ARMS SLASH

Says Scheme Does Not Fit Far East Conditions.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
TOKYO, March 25.—(Saturday.)—Following a conference of representatives of the war, navy and foreign departments this morning, the government sent instructions to Japan's representatives at the Geneva disarmament conference to oppose Prime Minister MacDonald's proposals to set a definite limit on the armies and navies of the world.

Japan's attitude is that the proposals are ambiguous regarding the peace and security problem. To decide that anyone is the aggressor merely on a violation of the various anti-war pacts is improper, Japan insists.

Bark Europe as a Basis.
The Tokyo government contends that it cannot accept a formula based upon the European situation, as she has China and Soviet Russia to consider, and especially as the armaments of those two countries are not definitely known.

Regarding the naval proposals in the MacDonald plan, Japan has already submitted its own plans and demands discussion of these. Japan's air force being far behind the air forces of the other powers, she cannot accept the British formula of 500 planes for each of the big nations.

The standing committee mentioned in the MacDonald plan to determine branches of peace may prove effective in respect to the advanced nations, but never will be able to function properly in regard to the soviet and China. It is contended, and therefore Japan reserves acceptance of this.

Britain Sees Peace Hope.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
LONDON, March 25.—Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, flew to Geneva today to participate in the conference of Prime Minister MacDonald's disarmament plan, which would grant equal home armies of 200,000 men to Germany, France, Italy and Poland.

The premier's statement to the house of commons last night on his recent trip to Geneva, Rome and Paris in the interest of peace, was enthusiastically received by practically the entire British press today. High hope is expressed that something tangible may come out of it.

Certainly the whole atmosphere, which ten days ago was charged with fear of war, is changed and today Europe is looking forward to some months of peaceful discussion, and this is a strong hope of eventual agreement.

MacDonald's unequivocal declaration in favor of immediate revision of the peace treaties is especially pleasing to the British and is interpreted as a sign that Great Britain has at last broken away from the French hegemony under which she was placed during the long tenure in the foreign office by Sir Austen Chamberlain.

France Angry with MacDonald.
(Overnight, 1933: By the New York Times.)
PARIS, March 24.—Prime Minister MacDonald's admission in parliament yesterday that the best method of revising the peace treaties was to revise them in Rome and here during his recent trip, and that this would be the purpose of the four power agreement proposed by Premier Mussolini, was greeted with great resentment in the French press today.

Winston Churchill, who attacked MacDonald and the plan, is today's hero in Paris and Chancellor Hitler of Germany, because he is moderating his foreign policy references, taking rank above the British prime minister in popularity.

The French press still professes to believe that peace and the maintenance of the peace treaties are the same thing. MacDonald is therefore accused of fomenting and even desiring war.

The government has as yet given no indication of what it thinks, for Premier Deladier is aware that within his own radical party there are those even among the leaders, who still view Germany as a menace.

RUMANIA SEIZES AUSTRIAN AS SPY; SCANDAL LOOMS
BUCHAREST, Rumania, March 24.—(AP.)—King Carol presided tonight over a meeting of the military council, at which he discussed with the war minister, the chief of staff, and other officers the details of espionage charges placed against Bruno Seletski, agent for the Austrian state, who was working in Rumania.

Seletski was arrested this morning. It was understood that other persons would be arrested shortly.

In the chamber of deputies last night opposition leaders demanded Seletski's arrest, alleging that he had bribed officers in the ministry of war and also various politicians to secure munitions orders for his firm.

(Nicolae Lupu, head of the Peasants party, charged in parliament last Tuesday that important military documents belonging to the war ministry had mysteriously come into the possession of an agent of the Austrian Rhoda ammunition works. The Peasants leader also charged that documents showed that 25 per cent of a $75,000,000 munitions order went to bribes for an unidentified cabinet minister and others.)

NEW ENVOY OF POLAND REFUSES TO GO TO ROME
WARSAW, March 24.—(AP.)—Count George Potocki, resigned Polish ambassador to Rome, resigned suddenly today after everything was ready for his departure for his post.

Some quarters said he decided not to go to Rome because he felt unable to serve as ambassador to a country where tendencies favorable to a revision of the peace treaties are strong. The count was an aid to Marshal Pilsudski during the world war.

Italy favors revision of the peace treaties and Poland is a strong supporter of them, fearing that any changes might endanger her hold on the Polish corridor to the sea.

FRANK CIMINO.

Frank Cimino, the garlic king of Beatebel, Cal., won a verdict of $35,515 yesterday before Judge Arthur W. Summers in the Circuit court from the G. H. Hammond company, which he charged with having improperly stored 338 tons of his malodorous bulbs so that they smelled even worse than they were supposed to.

Cimino placed the garlic in storage in a warehouse of the Hammond company, a subsidiary of Swift & Co., late in 1930. During the trial the defendants charged that he was a garlic hoarder, having had the intention of storing the garlic beyond the period of its natural life, to reap higher prices in the spring.

He charged, however, that the garlic had been stored without proper ventilation, and that was what caused it to spoil. During the trial, held before a jury, several dozen expert garlic tasters and garlic sniffers assured the jury that it was possible for garlic to spoil, and gave their theories as to the cause of spoilage in the case on trial.

TREATY REVISION CLASH SHAPED IN CENTRAL EUROPE

Little Entente 'Digs In' for Struggle.
BY DAVID DARRAH.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
BUDAPEST, Hungary, March 11.—(By Mail.)—In Hungary is centered the struggle to get the peace treaties revised, one reason, among many others, being that the treaty of Trianon reduced Hungary to about one-third of its former size.

It is not, however, so much a question of regaining former frontiers or getting back populations which have been included in other countries as it is economic considerations, one hears in Budapest. The real moving force is the necessity of making the map of Europe on a natural economic basis rather than on a military or political basis. Customs barriers, it is pointed out, have "played hob" with the exchange of both industrial and agricultural products.

Make Progress Toward Revision.
At any rate, since the Fascist grand council a year ago declared its conviction that it is necessary to "revise within the framework of the league of nations the clauses of those peace treaties which contain within themselves the grounds of unrest among the nations and, consequently, of eventual war," great progress has been made toward revision. Its chief proponents, Italy, Germany, and Hungary, have dealt hard blows to the French dogma that all peace treaties since 1918 are sacred and unchangeable.

An especially damaging blow was the Geneva agreement of last December giving Germany the moral right to arm the same as other nations. Now Hungary foresees the day when France will realize that the revision of the territorial clauses of the peace treaties will be as essential for the cause of peace as the settlement of the question of equality of rights of armament for Germany.

Alliance Formed.
Rumania, Yugoslavia, and Czechoslovakia, which compose the little entente, however, have also had their ears to the ground and have foreseen the menace of revision to the gains which they got out of the war. In December these powers met at Belgrade, discussed the movement for revision, and decided to strengthen their alliance and set up a permanent secretariat. Immediately Europe was filled with reports that another alliance was being formed to counteract the little entente.

Premiers of the little entente countries at the Belgrade conference were also agitated by reports of a project to divide up Yugoslavia and other successor states to the profit of Hungary, Italy, and Bulgaria. And at that time Premier Gombosi of Hungary paid a mysterious visit to Mussolini.

The new little entente organization, which was registered at Geneva, brought forth protests from Italy on the grounds that it is contrary to the spirit and the system of the league.

No secret is made of the fact that the reorganization was found to combat the treaty revision campaign.

Fear Opposing Bloc.
The three little entente states apparently believe in the possibility of an active alliance between Germany, Italy, and Hungary to get the Polish Italy, and restored territory for Hungary.

The clash over treaty revision between France and the other group of Germany, Italy, and Hungary, which is either shaped or shaped, may come "within the framework of the league of nations" as the Fascist grand council put it, or it may await an opportune time for settlement by other means.

In any event a multitude of terrifically powerful and volatile elements are very much mixed up in central Europe and seeking an equilibrium in the troubled medium of "sacred rights" and "invincible claims."

Edith Wharton Scores Again in Short Tale

Novelette Opens New Volume of Her Stories.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.
"Human Nature," by Edith Wharton. [Appleton.]

EDITH WHARTON has already proved herself master of that peculiarly delightful form of literary art, the novelette, in one of the classics of American literature, "Ethan Frome," and in at least two of the four little books which were gathered together under the generic title "Old New York."

"Human Nature," a novelette, is a particularly good example of her mastery of the form. It is a story of a man who, in the name of duty, sacrifices his love for a woman who is already married.

The story is told in a simple, direct, and unassuming style, which is characteristic of Wharton's writing. The plot is well developed, and the characters are well drawn.

The novelette is a masterpiece of its kind, and it is a pleasure to read it. It is a story that is both interesting and moving, and it is a testament to Wharton's skill as a writer.

DECLARES ROOSEVELT BOOK IS A CLEAR STATEMENT OF PLANS

"Looking Forward," by Franklin D. Roosevelt. [John Day.]

There has been published a collection of the speeches and written articles of Franklin D. Roosevelt. It is the first time in history that a President of the United States has compiled on the eve of his inauguration, a permanent record of his program for his presidency. The book was delayed first by the crises which confronted President Roosevelt, and further by mysterious changes which were made in the text.

Whatever those changes were, from a literary standpoint, they were all for the best, for "Looking Forward" is in its final published form, as clear and concise and inspiring a document as could be given by any ruler in the history of the world.

The book is a masterpiece of literary art, and it is a pleasure to read it. It is a story that is both interesting and moving, and it is a testament to Roosevelt's skill as a writer.

BRIEF REVIEWS
BY M. D.

Rhoda Truax received much favorable criticism when "Hospital" came out last year. This year "Doctors Carry the Keys" (Dutton), somewhat on the same order, comes to dispute what reputation she had gained. It tells the story, simple and unassuming, of Ellen and George, who love each other and go in a professional capacity to a hospital for mental diseases. Here their medical colleagues involve them in their frustrated and superfluous lives. The atmosphere of the place and the type of people they meet on the staff almost succeed in wrecking their lives, but love finally triumphs.

It seems to the reader that these people are a little dull and unimportant to write such a long book about, but the writing is able and the plot well developed. There is nothing, however, that leads the reader to believe that this would be a book that would deter him from finishing it. The author annoys the reader with a certain heart to heart chattiness about the characters as if she understood them and were not going to allow them to pull anything over either her eyes or her reader's eyes.

hardly be worth mentioning if Dr. Barton had not so often been a stickler for the minor accuracies on the part of others.

The last three chapters are from the hand of William H. Townsend, an attorney-at-law in Lexington, Ky., author of vivid and carefully wrought books, "Lincoln in His Wife's Home Town" and "Lincoln the Litigant."

The possible neuroses of Lincoln, his mental balance and his attachments to reality, his aggressive impulses, the degree of sadism in his motivation, the rôle of dreams in his adjustments, the psychic basis of his humor are among the phases of Lincoln dealt with in a book in which the author terms a "psycho-biography."

No monograph of aliphed and careless toll is this book, "Lincoln: A Psycho-Biography," by L. Pierce Clark. The size of it and the extent of the data in which the author has immersed himself testify to an extraordinary conscientious effort. His eager, enthusiastic and warm approach to his subject is a notable contrast to the cold and fragmentary psychoanalytic readings of Lincoln which have been offered to the American public in at least two egregious instances.

The author's argument and theory are summarized in the dedication. "... He [the author] believes he has succeeded in rendering a greater depth of understanding to the unconscious motivations that have played a dominant rôle in the personality of the most human, the most gentle personage in American history." He lists psychological works of reference which form the approach for his diagnosis. Thus he came to his task possessed of what he considers the best and latest word of science on insanity, the libido, illusions, the rôle of the ego, narcissism, morbid cravings, and melancholia.

Economical tips for week-end food shoppers—a Saturday morning radio feature—will be presented today by Mary Meade over station W.G.N. Tune in at 9:45 for Miss Meade's market chat.

BY MARY MEADE.

Why did my loaf of bread crack along the sides? What gave it a grayish color and soggy texture? What gives bread a heavy crust and a coarse grain? What caused my loaves to sour?

These queries and many more about the troubles of baking the stuff of life drift onto our desk each week. And since in these bustling times, if we are to take the time and effort to bake bread at all, we want it to be good bread, I'm going to suggest this morning a few quick fire answers to some of your most common troubles.

First, about the side cracks which ruin the shape of the loaf and cause it to stale and dry. As a rule this is caused by a too stiff dough into which an excessive amount of flour has been worked. It may also be caused by too hot an oven. The heat forms a heavy crust over the top and the steam is forced to escape at the weakest point, which is through the unworn parts at the sides of the pan.

Next, what about off colors and soggy loaves? Usually a poor flour can be blamed for much of this—the gray tint and poor flavor. Too little baking is also a factor. Soggy loaves, that is, loaves that are too moist, are caused by too short a time given to the rising or to the baking itself. Another factor in heavy graininess is sometimes the use of too much moisture in the dough. Too little forms side cracks and too much forms bad color and texture. The answer, of course, is to use good ingredients and make them up faithfully in accordance with a tried, dependable recipe.

Streaks are another Waterloo to good bread bakers. They may turn up just before the upper crust, generally distributed through the loaf, or down at the bottom and sides, and are a sign of omission or commission connected with each one of them. Heavy streaks at the bottom of a loaf mean that in rising the loaf has been placed on some surface which retained cold thus preventing the dough of that section from rising properly. If that streak is just under the top crust, it was likely caused by the drying of that surface during the last rising. If the streak is covered with a warm moist towel or if the dough itself is brushed lightly with warm water, this will be taken care of.

In the same way, those inner streaks come from drying of the dough's surface during some of the risings. Again a moist covering or a light greasing is the answer. And be careful not to work in raw flour from the board after the dough has risen, and is being formed into loaves. This also will account for heavy gray streaks which ruin good loaves in bread.

Another question which perhaps comes most often from distressed writers is that of bread lightness and its lack. As you know, the growth of the yeast plant and the gas given off during this growth is the leavening power in our baked doughs. This yeast growth is stimulated by the addition of sugar and certain other yeast foods, and controlled by the addition of salt. A certain amount of salt is needed, or the bread will be porous and husky, but too much will so hinder the growth of the yeast that we will have a heavy, solid bread.

Next, if you are bothered with a heavy crust and prefer a thin, tender one, try baking your loaves at a higher temperature and therefore for a shorter period of time.

Your bread is a bane to loaf makers, whether they be in bakeries or in the home kitchen. A pinkish effervescence accompanying this sourness sometimes appears after a few days' storing. If you find such a sign, it should be the signal for a strenuous scrubbing of all boards, pans, bins, and pans for such souring means the presence of "rod"—a most irritating and persistent bacterial growth that thrives when once started in a kitchen. But if your sourdough loaves are merely of the usual variety, they are likely to be the result of over action of the yeast—too long rising between punches or rising at too warm temperatures.

What is sometimes called a yeast taste is not really caused by excess yeast, but by too much heat during the rising. This in turn permits the growth of undesirable organisms which flavor the dough and finally the bread.

Mr. Vanderbilt Takes You on a Fishing Trip

"DEVIL'S PLAYGROUND."
Presented by Frank R. Wilson.
Released by Principal Pictures.
Shown at the Chicago Theater.
Featuring George Vanderbilt.

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

Mr. George Vanderbilt went fishing. With several enthusiastic comrades and an all seeing and all telling movie camera he sailed for the fishing waters off Pelee and the Bahamas islands. "The Devil's Playground" is a screen chronicle of his adventures.

It's a little five reeler that will be extremely interesting to Isiah Waltoners from its sports angle, and will be found an engaging number by lovers of scenery and the briny deep. Its drawback is the accompanying description of activities. This, while informative, is interlarded with the sort of deadly facetious comment that has ruined so many otherwise worthy lectures of like nature.

The film starts with a scene in the home of the young fisherman. A visitor is announced—and in dashes an enthusiastic young man with a parcel, which he unwraps with cocky dispatch.

"What is that?" queries the host and the man with whom he has been chatting.

"That," turns out to be a beautifully mounted bass, which the newcomer exhibits with pride.

"Four pounds it is an ounce," he exclaims. "And did that fellow fight? I had a time landing him—but there he is! Ever see his equal?" or words to the same effect.

Mr. Vanderbilt and the third party look at one another and smile. "HAD they ever seen the like?" George, paragon, Mr. Vanderbilt, rises and looks reflectively into a bowl where swim—goldfish, I imagine. The other man produces an album.

"We'll see," he draws—and begins to turn the pages. "George and I went on a fishing trip. . . ."

The waters of the goldfish bowl take on the qualities of a crystal ball—and you learn about what happened on that fishing trip.

Wahoos, sailfish, sharks, devilfish, barracudas, butterfish, tigerfish, and a whole lot of fish caught by the old method of hand harpooning—are the temptations that now swim into your line of vision, and always there is the youth who plays soccer for Roxbury at the pulling end of those whose business and usually conquers the desired contents of the deep.

Brief glimpses of country and natives along the line of sail are presented, and Mr. V. is discovered at one time apparently in dire peril. An angry monster pulls him off the tripod where he sits hauling away, and once it has him submerged, gives him a spanking, turning him into a fish at last pulled into the boat rowed frantically to his rescue—and right about then he decides it's time to go home.

The piece ends in the room where it began, with the monster, but in his place calling gazing with disillusioned eyes at his fighting bass, which seems to grow smaller and smaller. . . .

Stores Offer Large Choice of Grey Designs.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

There is no reason why any shopper should be fussy about the new handkerchief collections—plenty of new ideas are here, all kinds of new color combinations, and what is probably the finest assortment of "grey" that any buyer has seen in weeks.

Look for the sheer linen grey squares that are dramatically contrasted with applied motifs of ink black linen in patterns of leaves and black circles. Others are combined with pale shades of grey and white, and some very feminine affairs have a sheer net border down one side, which is something decidedly new and different.

Knockout black and white combinations are the most startling designs you can find—striped prints, hand blocked dots of white against a black background, and some breezy looking plaids, are just a few of what you will discover. They are stunning pocket accents to stow in the pockets of your new dark colored spring suits. Other patchwork kerchief patterns to use for accents are the squares made of four smaller squares—for instance, two squares of grey, one of orange, and the fourth of pale green. Printed colored kerchiefs seem to be dimmer and sadder than ever before. You will find anything and everything from broken circles to mixtures that look like a well scrambled jigsaw puzzle.

Some people simply can't be sold on color—the little old pure white henky can't be equaled—so these new white affairs ought to please thousands. You can find delicate sheer white Apennine that are as fragile as a butterfly, and some that are as tough as a piece of old leather. You can buy plain tailored white linen handkerchiefs that are almost as transparent as a film of cellophane, and you'd be surprised to hear that the old lace edged white frills are returning to the best of feminine handbags. They are perfect accessories for all the frilled and ruffled frocks of the new spring season, and really they are very intriguing, after years of rather bold and blatant colored prints.

While you are selecting white accents you might wonder into the neckwear sections and enjoy the fluttering flippancies that modern spring mounds are artfully twisting around their necklines. Sir Walter Raleigh's stuff and white organdy are ready for the top of dark colored street frocks. You simply tie them coquettishly around the throat and walk out ready for praise. Very demure V line collars of white, with an attached bow that practically covers the chest, are a chance from the clergymen collars that almost succeeded in choking us in the name of fashion a while back.

Ruffled white plaques. About girls that can be matched with white plique gloves are fetching details that will do grand things for all your dark toned dresses and suits, and for some interesting nautical looking you might care for the square sailor suit collar in either plique or organdy, with cuffs to match.

And some knowing neckwear buyers are whispering about white plique berets that will arrive in a few weeks, so that collar, cuffs, and extra bow, and the top headpiece can be carefully and expertly matched for fashion-wise costume accessory collectors.

Guimpe Dresses Smart, Practical for School Wear

GIRL'S DRESS.

Here is another jumper dress for little girls. Low plait, provide skirt fullness, and the separate guimpe has full, puffed sleeves and boyish collar and tie.

The pattern, No. 3433, comes in sizes 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. Size 8 requires 1 1/2 yards of 29 inch material for the jumper with 1/2 yard of 25 inch material for the blouse, and 1/2 yard of ribbon for the bow and 1/2 yard of 35 inch contrasting.

We note this form of arrested development in a number of women, some of them married women who go on dreaming and behaving like 15 year olds. It isn't the way to get the most out of life for yourself.

Suppose you get along to 39 and the one man appears whose appeal surpasses all others, but there is one missing link—money, in this case, and it is wise to let this "bird in the hand" go for the attentions of swains to whom you mean no more than a pleasant evening? Of course, you, puzzled, will decide what you want, life—entertainment provision for the present, or the security of love for your future.

If love demands a little current sacrifice, is it so much to ask for the reward it has to offer?

Woman of 29 Can't Decide on Man to Marry

Hates to Give Up Her Various Dates.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

She is 29, self-admittedly the favorite dancing and theater partner of three nice men. Thus, she gets out three times a week, usually. A few months ago there came into popular one's life a fourth man, who after a few dates asked for exclusive rights on her company.

"Do you think it fair of him to ask me to give up other male companions when he is not financially able to marry and there is nothing definite about when he will do it? At one time he had money. The depression hit him. I feel he'll come back, and I like him better than any man I ever knew. But isn't it the best policy to keep hold of all your friends until you are sure that your marriage date is not far off?"

At 35, 37, 39, we'd say to keep as many beaux on the string as you could until one flashed the ring. But at 29 the scene might as well be viewed from a more adult angle.

We feel that by 29 a woman has learned you can't have your cake and eat it, that you have to meet life on a compromise basis not asked of the teens or early twenties. We know that proposals become rarer and rarer after the mid-twenties are reached; we have it from reliable statistical sources that the chances of marriage diminish with each succeeding year after 25. But most of all, we think a mature woman of 29 should get out of the habit of thinking herself a very young thing whose popularity is bound to endure so long as she wills it.

We note this form of arrested development in a number of women, some of them married women who go on dreaming and behaving like 15 year olds. It isn't the way to get the most out of life for yourself.

Suppose you get along to 39 and the one man appears whose appeal surpasses all others, but there is one missing link—money, in this case, and it is wise to let this "bird in the hand" go for the attentions of swains to whom you mean no more than a pleasant evening? Of course, you, puzzled, will decide what you want, life—entertainment provision for the present, or the security of love for your future.

If love demands a little current sacrifice, is it so much to ask for the reward it has to offer?

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY.

(Copyright, 1933, by The Chicago Tribune.)

CLASS DAY.

"The more investigating one does the more one realizes the stupidity of most criminals." Prof. Fordney was addressing his class.

"For example: In Chicago recently a Negro murdered his wife, cut her body up and threw it into a canal several miles from his house. Then when he returned home he discovered he had forgotten the head! While trying to dispose of that he was arrested. If it hadn't been for this stupid oversight he might never have been convicted."

"Another instance of stupidity. At 4 a. m. John Carr started on his milk route. At 7 a. m. his dead body was discovered a block from his first delivery. It was impossible to establish the exact time of death."

"Dick Summers, a known enemy, was suspected, but he had an iron-clad alibi for 4 a. m., so after a severe grilling was released."

"The press didn't get hold of the story until late that night. At 4 p. m. Sgt. Reynolds, in charge of the investigation, reported to Inspector Kiley that he had made no progress. He believed Summers' guilty, but his alibi remained unbroken. He was at a loss what to do next."

"Becoming interested in the case, I secured the names and addresses of three customers on Carr's route. The last one was Angus McDevitt, 836 Bragg street, which was the driver's next to last stop. When I handed these to Reynolds with the suggestion that he call on them, particularly McDevitt, he bounded out of the room, realizing the importance of the suggestion and what he had previously overlooked."

Reynolds' hunch was right. Summers had killed the driver.

William Wieboldt

Married 50 Years;
Hold Party Tonight

William A. Wieboldt, founder of the Wieboldt Stores, Inc., and his wife, Anna Louise, will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary today. This year also marks the golden anniversary of the beginning of the Wieboldt mercantile enterprises.

The wedding anniversary will be formally observed at a reception to-night at the Belden-Stratford hotel. Present will be five children, Werner, Raymond, Elmer, Florence, and Anna; twenty-four grandchildren, and a few friends.

Mr. Wieboldt came to Chicago from Germany more than sixty years ago. In 1882 he married Anna Louise Krueger, and in the same year they began their business operations in Grand Avenue, near Paulina, later in the succeeding years they expanded their enterprises, and today they have four Wieboldt stores in Chicago and one in Evanston.

In 1921 Mr. and Mrs. Wieboldt established the "Wieboldt Foundation" with an endowment of $5,000,000 which helps to support the University of Chicago. Mrs. Wieboldt's hobby is philanthropy. The Wieboldts lived on the north side of Chicago for many years. Two years ago they moved to 243 Warwick road, Kenilworth.

Legion Auxiliary.

Mrs. S. Alfred Blackburn of Versailles, Ky., national president of the American Legion auxiliary, will be the guest of the Illinois department of the auxiliary at luncheon today at the Midland club. Mrs. Blackburn will discuss plans for the annual convention to be held Oct. 2 to 5 in Chicago.

Reception Will Be at Casino.

George V. Marston, who flew from Tucson, where he attends a ranch school, to be here today, will attend his brother as best man, and ushering will be Robert F. Carr Jr., who came from the Hill school for the occasion; James L. Green of New York, the bridegroom's brother-in-law; Alfred

Florence Carr Will Be Bride at Rites Today

Ceremony Will Be Held at St. Chrysostom's.

Wagstaff, Byrnes MacDonald, and Robert Herndon of New York; W. Edwin Stanley Jr., Ralph Applegate, and John S. Baker Jr.

Immediately following the ceremony there will be a reception at the Casino, and tonight Mr. Carr is entertaining at dinner at his residence, 319 Lake Shore drive, for the bride party, and the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hunter S. Marston of New York, and Mrs. Green.

Mr. Marston and his bride are leaving after the reception for New York to sail for a honeymoon in Bermuda and they will be at home after May 1 at Lake Forest.

The marriage this morning in Paducah, Ky., of Miss Ruth Sherrill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hardy Sherrill of that city, and Arthur Bidwell Hellyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Turrell Hellyer of Riverside, will be a very quiet one, with only the immediate families present.

The service is to be read at 11 o'clock in the Woman's club—the Presbyterian church burned down recently. Mrs. Gordon Gould of Riverside will be the bride's only attendant and Thomas Merrill of Riverside will attend the bridegroom. Most of the Hellyer newsweds go to Japan on their wedding trip, for it is there that the family has vast tea plantations, and today's bridegroom's brother, Frederick Hellyer, took his bride, the former La Verne Louer, there to live after they were married five years ago. But today's bride couple are postponing their trip to Japan and after a brief honeymoon they will be at home at the Whitehall in Chicago.

Bennett to Give Benefit Party.

For the third time Ridge Farm pretorium will receive a fine picnic luncheon as a result of about sixty friends of the Edward H. Bennett family having a rollicking good time, for the Bennett family is giving the spring holiday party tomorrow from 4 to 7 at Bugatelle, their Lake Forest residence. Half of the winnings of the young and old gamblers—very low stakes, of course—goes to the charity and half is kept by the winners.

It is a parents' and children's party with friends of Mr. and Mrs. Bennett and their three children, Teddy, Bennett and Betty, and Joe Mead, invited. The family will spend the spring holiday in the country for Teddy, who is a student at St. Mark's, Betty, who goes to the Latin school in town, and Joe, who goes to school in Deerfield, Ill., all enjoy life more in Lake Forest more than they do in the city.

Society Listens to Grand National.

The Grand National was the subject of conversation at more than one smart luncheon table yesterday in town and out in the country. All the members of the "riding" crowd who had set their alarms early to be sure to hear the broadcast from England at 9 o'clock agreed that it was a good race, most of them were glad enough Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's horse, Kellsboro Jack, had galloped home the winner, but why, they asked, did the announcer have to be so positively phlegmatic?

Cool and composed as if talking about a county fair, the radio announcer said, "They're off." Even when disaster overtook Dusty Foot, the American owned colt, ridden by the popular "Fitz" Hostwick (Mrs. Clark's nephew), the announcer recorded it casually with a neatly clipped accent.

All the Chicago members of the Alton winter colony remarked that Mrs. T. H. Somerville's Heart Breaker ran tenth, but then at that, they pointed out, he came in under the line. It was Heart Breaker who last year won the famous Carolina Cup race that is to be run today down at Camden, S. C. This event always opens the spring season at Camden and attracts many Chicagoans both in person and over the radio. This time interest will be especially intense since Ben Leslie Behr's Brose Hoyer will be running. Many of the followers of the race have high hopes that Mr. Behr's entry will bring home the Queen Anne cup which is an unusual example of the silversmith's art made by Alexander Sinclair in 1764. The winner of the trophy holds it for a year and then receives a copy for keeps.

Mother Goose (Elizabeth Bunnell), at left, and Little Bo-Peep (Madeleine Sheridan) will step right out of the Mother Goose book tonight at the Woman's club of Evanston to take part in the "Mother Goose Follies of 1933" for the benefit of the Infant Welfare and the Community Chest of Evanston. The pageant was written by Mrs. William N. Hughes of Evanston and she is directing the production.

Though the Austin Niblicks spend a good share of every winter in Alton, they will be in the radio audience today for Mrs. Niblick is just back in town from the south and Mr. Niblick came a fortnight ago. With Mrs. Niblick is her sister, Mrs. Frank E. Wilhelm who has been her house guest at Alton.

Dancing Pupils Enjoy Party.

The social events of the season for some of the very young members of society were the costume parties given yesterday, the last of Alvar L. Bourgeois' north side dancing classes for this season. Bourgeois' classes have been well known in Chicago for the last sixty or more years—ever since Augustus Bourgeois started the school in 1857. The present head of the school is his son, and among his students are grandchildren and great-grandchildren of his father's first pupils.

The afternoon party was for children from 8 to 12 years of their friends and was given by young people 15 to 17 years old. There were grand marches and collations at both. Miss Lucie Jacobs and Willett N. Gorham and forty-six of their friends will dine and dance tonight as the guests of Mr. Gorham's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Smith Gorham Jr., at the Opera club. That they will have a good time goes without saying for Saturday nights at the Opera club always are amusing, especially after the theater when many of the stage stars who are in the city drop in for supper and are persuaded to give an impromptu floor show. The Jacob-Gorham wedding will take place in Winnetka next Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Jacob Baur will wear the yellow brocade satin gown that Mrs. Lafayette McWilliams appeared in at the reception she gave for President and Mrs. McKinley when they visited Chicago in 1898 at the party the Woman's National Republican club is to have this afternoon in the Gold room of the Congress hotel.

And Mrs. Baur will not be alone in her old fashioned dress, for a number of the Republicans are to put on the century old dresses that belong to Mrs. Franklin R. Colby. They will contrast with the ruffled wedding gown and the rubber bathing suits that are to be modeled in a parade of the latest spring styles.

Then there will be crystal gazers and numerologists "to give the guests a new slant on things," as Mrs. Baur explains. And Mrs. William H. Stuart is to preside over a table where dishes made from the recipes in the well known "Distinguished Hostess Book" are to be offered for sale. . . . the proceeds to go to the support of the club.

Mrs. Milford S. Sorley is general chairman of the party and Mrs. Andrew Sanderson is in charge of a group of the juniors who are to usher the guests about from one card table to the next.

The best ping-pong players on the south shore have saved this afternoon for the opening of the singles and doubles ping-pong tournament to be played at the South Shore Country club. The board of managers of the club went into conference the other day and voted to invest in eight brand new tables and racquets specially for this event. The semi-finals will be run off tomorrow and the finals will be the feature of one of the big Saturday night parties soon at the club.

Numerous music lovers will be driving south to 4800 Drexel boulevard next Wednesday night, for on that night the Francis Neillsons will open their imposing old mansion for a song recital by Mme. Claire Dux for the benefit of Lincoln Center camp, and whenever Mme. Dux sings her many friends make an effort to be there. Her program of songs would seem to be particularly appealing, judging from an advance copy of the program, and one of the accompaniments is to be played on the organ, which is one of the finest pipe organs in the city, so that will be an additional attractive feature.

Members of the Arts club and their guests are going to have an opportunity to meet Nathan Milstein, the young violinist, at a buffet supper on Sunday, April 2. They will hear him play, too, for after supper, which is at 7:30 o'clock, Mr. Milstein will give a program.

Mrs. C. H. Schweppe in New York.

vacation from St. Paul's school, where he is preparing for college. Girls who have been invited to the Princeton Junior prom have all been disappointed to learn that there will be no prom this spring, so Mrs. Ralph H. Poole said yesterday. According to a letter she received from her son, Ralph H. Poole Jr., who was one of the boys on the prom committee, the committee and the college authorities decided that this was not a propitious time to have house parties and so they were called off.

Mr. Poole Jr. is not coming home for his spring vacation, but his younger brother, Richard, is arriving today from Hotchkiss, and Nancy, the younger daughter, is coming next month from St. Timothy's.

Mr. and Mrs. James M. Hopkins and their younger daughter, Kay Goodman, are leaving today to spend ten days in Phoenix. Miss Marjorie Goodman is not accompanying them.

Miss Edna Doering arrived at home yesterday from a trip to Florida, and her younger sister, Nancy, arrives this morning from school in the east. They are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund J. Doering Jr.

Mrs. Ralph A. Bard of Highland Park and her debutante daughter, Miss Janet Bard; George M. Bard, who is 8 years old, and Mrs. Carlton Vall will leave next Thursday by motor for the Bards' farm near Richmond, Va. Mr. Bard and Miss Katherine Bard, who will make her debut in two years time, are going down by train on April 9. Ralph A. Bard Jr., who is a senior at Princeton, will join his family in Virginia for the holidays from college. The Bards will be at home in Highland Park again the first of May.

Miss Dorothy Bard, daughter of the Francis N. Bards of Escondido road, Highland Park, will be at home today from Connecticut college at New London, where she is a senior. Miss Bard made her debut last September.

Lecture Today on "The Theater."

Today at noon in the library of the Alliance Bards, Georges Caulet, director of the International theater, will give a lecture on "The Theater."

Hathaway Watson Jr. and Volney and Archie Foster are among the boys at home from St. Mark's for the spring vacation. Hathaway's older brother, Walter, who is a freshman at Harvard, has only a five day holiday, so he is remaining in the east.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Eiting have moved from their apartment at 219 Lake Shore drive to the Drake hotel.

Twelve year old Mary Seymour Fynchon will be in town for the next ten days, renewing friendships with the little girls she went to the Latin school with when she lived here. She is arriving today to spend her spring vacation from Rosemary, in Greenwich, with her father, Harold Fynchon, and Mrs. Fynchon at 210 East Pearson street.

In order to be on hand for a very important event in the Charles Clarence Smith family in April, Mrs. Ralph H. James will sail next Saturday on the Champlain for Southampton. She will go directly to Cobham, a picturesque little English village about 25 miles out of London, where the former Margaret James went to live after her marriage to Mr. Smith last July. The Smiths have taken a small white house which has all the advantages of the country, including a garden.

During the two months she will be away Mrs. James will divide her time between Cobham and London, where her other daughter, Mrs. Gordon Stannus, lives. Mrs. James will return to Chicago in time for the opening of a Century of Progress in June. The luncheon the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations and the English friends make an effort to be there. Her program of songs would seem to be particularly appealing, judging from an advance copy of the program, and one of the accompaniments is to be played on the organ, which is one of the finest pipe organs in the city, so that will be an additional attractive feature.

President Lent to Talk to Elmira College Club

The Elmira College club will entertain Dr. Frederick Lent, president of Elmira college, at luncheon today at the Chicago College club, 196 East Delaware place. The college located at Elmira, N. Y., was the first woman's college founded in the United States. Mrs. Sarah T. Luce is president of the Chicago club. Mrs. Waldman Burr Henlon and Mrs. Gordon Buchanan have been active in making arrangements for today's luncheon.

When Standing Turn Palms Out; Feel Shoulders Snap Into Place

Walking or standing any time, anywhere, simply turn the palms out as in the illustration. Without any shoulder pressure you feel the shoulder blades click together, and can see them in a profile view.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

All this week we've focused attention on the neck muscles, the theory being that you can't have a good head on your shoulders until the neck muscles learn to hold that head up properly.

It is a West Point principle of training, proved right beyond question of doubt by the strikingly erect carriage of the trained cadet.

Now, we are going into the next point of attack—the shoulders. Beginning Monday you will be shown how the cadet gets that straight back of his, the flattened shoulder blades and his consequent fine bearing.

Don't miss these shoulder exercises. There are very, very few of us, women and men, girls and boys, who can't stand a little more straightening and flattening of shoulders and back. The young ones need this shoulder straightening badly. They need it to prevent faulty posture at school desks, at any and all youthful tasks.

You young men and women whose occupation or industrial pursuit necessitates prolonged sitting day after day need it. Older men and women with tissues saturated with fat will find the exercises reducing and rejuvenating. Muscles of the spine are apt to be imperfectly used in people of middle age. As one gets older the tendency to stoop is common; the elasticity of the chest walls is not maintained; often extreme flatness or stiffness sets in; anyway, youth is defeated.

It has been well said that a youthful appearance can be preserved longer by holding a good posture than by using cosmetics. It is true!

If you have missed any of the exercises for the neck this week, you will find them in a complete review in tomorrow (Sunday's) paper.

If you missed the first week's stretching exercises to straighten the spinal column, train down the hips and waist, and improve the carriage, you may have them in printed form in return for a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Today, in preparation for next week's shoulder work, I offer you a simple trick recommended by Major Rayner, head of physical training at West Point, to flatten the shoulder blades, or, as he calls it, "to close the barn doors."

A knowledge of fundamentals—which is really general. Once I understood the reason for a phase of behavior, we'll say, I found I could work out the practical details of managing the children very well.

"As for idealism," said the second speaker, "I don't think that's to be sneezed at. Of course, there's idealism and idealism. If by ideals you mean a sentimental image of a perfect mother, or an impossible ideal of a perfect child, that is to be sneezed at. And more than that, it's harmful. But if by ideals you mean worthwhile aims for the children and yourself, that's another story. If by idealism you mean reaching out for a deep understanding of what children are and acting accordingly, that's not impractical, at all."

I see no reason why all these angles on advice to parents can't be combined or used in turn. To my mind articles for parents should give a general understanding of child nature and ideals of management tempered by common sense, plus definite suggestions for dealing with children, allowing a wide margin for individuality.

Writers Argue Over Methods of Approach

General Articles Versus Theories Discussed.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Several writers on child training were having a discussion—no, a plain, everyday, common or garden variety of argument.

"I don't think anything does parents any good unless it gives them definite, specific advice," said one. "I think these general articles leave them all up in the air."

"I don't agree with you at all," said another. "I think the general articles are, if anything, more valuable."

"They have mostly to do with ideals," said the first. "What mothers and fathers need is good, practical advice," she went on in a positive tone.

"Just because an article is general and even ideal doesn't mean that it isn't practical," said a third writer. "Some of the things that have helped me as a mother the most have been

Parisian Suspender Suit of Linen Smartly Contrasts Green with Yellow

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS—[Special]—Paris is producing coarse linen for hot weather fashions. Dresses, suits, blouses, and even hats and shoes are being made of it. Black linen is being launched for town wear, and some of the suits made of it are the smartest to be found in Paris. Dark blue and brown linen, too, are made use of by the dressmakers.

Suits with dark skirts and light jackets are done in linen. Hermes makes the four-color straight skirt of dark green linen, and gives it suspenders, which are held to the skirt by four metal rings, as shown in the background. The short jacket is made of yellow linen (reco), and is double breasted, being fastened on four dark green buttons. The tailored revers and collar are of dark green linen. As are the narrow cuffs on the sleeves.

The tailored blouse, in the background, is of yellow crepe. It buttons up the center front and has a turn-over yellow collar and a tie of dark green. There are three buttons sewed on top of each shoulder.

The color scheme of this ensemble—dark green and yellow—is one of the surprises color harmonies of the new season, inspired by the daffodils. (Copyright 1933. By The Chicago Tribune.)

Of course toilets must be clean! Stains are ugly. Odors are objectionable. But you need not scrub. Use Sani-Flush and toilets will gleam like new. Dirt or smells can't stay where Sani-Flush is.

Just sprinkle a little Sani-Flush in the bowl. (Follow directions on the can.) Flush the toilet. And that's all! Germs and smells are killed. The hidden trap that a brush can't reach is purified! Sani-Flush can't harm plumbing.

Why we say—
Keep going with PEP!

THE Kellogg Company of Battle Creek has always considered wheat and bran among nature's greatest foods.

Kellogg's PEP Bran Flakes—made of toasted wheat with extra bran—have essential elements which yield energy and strength. Eaten with milk or cream they provide easy-to-digest nourishment. There is enough bran in PEP to be mildly laxative.

For years, active, energetic people have shown a preference for these crisp flakes. It is the famous flavor of PEP that has won the name "better bran flakes."

"Keep going with PEP" is a reminder to people of all ages who enjoy the feeling of fitness. Here are nourishing wheat and healthful bran in a delicious form.

Try PEP on this personal guarantee: "Buy a package from your grocer. If you are not satisfied and delighted—return the empty package and we will gladly refund your money."

Chicago's Fighters Sharpen Punches in 4 Round Drills

BY WILFRED SMITH.

Chicago's Golden Glovers hit the fastest pace of their training period yesterday afternoon at the Illinois Athletic club. From now on the boys ill begin to taper off in their drills, awaiting Wednesday night, when 16 of them will face the boys from New York in the sixth annual Golden Gloves intercity competition.

All the champions, with the exception of Freddie Caserio, boxed four or five minute rounds yesterday, and after all had finished Coach Johnson reported that the weight of the boys were extremely satisfactory, that their accuracy in punching boded ill for the easterners, and that all were in the best of health.

Caserio Scoffs at New York.

Caserio, who has favored the cut over his eye, now nearly healed, was spokesman for the Chicagoans. "We're going to lick New York as badly as they can lick us," he said, and the workers came out here boasting of

The rest came for the train ride, and for that matter, so did the white bunch."

Eager to Enter Ring.

Caserio's attitude was reflected by the other members of Chicago's squad yesterday. As the time approached for the weigh-in, the boys all can think of nothing else except the chance to get into the ring with a New York boy. Johnny Baltzer, the light-weight champion, and who will give away five or six pounds to Charley Green, the New York Negro, wants to avenge his defeat last year by New York's secondary flyweight, Johnny MacFarland, a scrapper, one that won't stop no matter how many times he's hit. So he has at least an even chance to win, while the standing is against him.

Henry Rothler, who led the assault which tied the champions of Germany last summer at Soldiers' field in the latest amateur show ever held, is ready to take on any New York close decision last year in New York.

but he's improved tremendously since then. Rother is accustomed to crowds. Fighting before 45,000 at Soldiers' field and in the C. Y. O. tournaments and Golden Gloves has done that.

Will Get New Uniforms.

Jack Smith, Peoria bantamweight, has a slightly bruised hand, but he will be ready Wednesday night if called upon.

But Ginter, a two rated fighter, is the division champion. Johnny Dohler, Cleveland's lightweight Golden Gloves champion, who finished runner-up to Eddie Ward in Chicago's tournament, and Keith Graves each need a bit more boxing to reach their best condition.

Chicago's white and blue uniforms will be ready the first of next week. The archery takes immediately after the break, here our amateurs generally stop and wait several seconds. In New York, unless the referee gives boys apart, you must watch all time on the break or you'll get popped when you don't expect it. New York has brought at least 15 boys in each weight, but we have only 16 of them, can fight

Rosenbloom Cuts Foe's Eyes in Title Fight.

New York, March 24.—(U)—Maxie Rosenbloom won the light heavyweight championship beyond all question tonight when he scored a technical knockout in four rounds over Bob Godwin of Dayton, Pa., hitherto recognized by the National Boxing association as the 175 pound titleholder.

The bout was a farce from a competitive standpoint.

Hartley was forced to stop the contest after 1 minute and 18 seconds of the fourth round, when a deep cut in Godwin's left eyebrow was bleeding so badly it was dangerous to let him continue.

Godwin came into the ring with white tape plastered over both eyebrows, hiding deep cuts suffered in training. It was no trick at all for the clever Rosenbloom to slap away the covering and open the wounds afresh.

Goes Down Twice.

He was floored twice in the first round with left hooks to the body. He came right up without a count the first time, and took only three the second time. He did not appear hurt by either blow.

After sticking to Godwin's body through the first round, Rosenbloom landed a few blows to the head in the third and fourth rounds, and there was nothing for Hartley to do but call a halt. What few punches Rosenbloom, never known as a heavy hitter, did land to the face in the first two rounds also opened cuts in Godwin's cheeks below the eyes.

Cleveland Athletic club is national club champion. After opening with a poor 793 the Ohio entry came through with 989 and 974 to total 2,736.

The Herbert's Illinois Athletic club five shot 793, 911, and 989, to total 2,693. Hoffman's Hamilton club scored 2,609, and the Wagner I. A. C.'s 2,419.

Chicago teams will appear on tomorrow's all-star schedule in an attempt to place among the leaders and share in the $50,000 prize melon. Among them are the Mineralites, with a 2,950 average for ten A. B. C. tournaments, and the Walter Birk Candies, 1917 champions. Harry Steers, Frankie Karcheiser, Frank (Bud) Wright, Joe Elger, and Billy Rusch are on the Mineralite team.

Otto Niachke of Cleveland, who won the single title last year at Detroit with 731, will attempt to retain his championship tomorrow, something no bowler has done.

HIGH RAIL FARE HURTS TRAVEL, PULLMAN FINDS

First Loss in Many Years Shown.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Maintenance of unduly high passenger ticket rates has been the chief reason for the decline in first class railway travel and the loss of railway business, President David A. Crawford of Pullman, Inc., points out in the company's annual report, mailed to stockholders yesterday.

Last year, for the first time in nearly two-thirds of a century, the Pullman carrier business was operated at a loss, as a consequence of the unparalleled contraction in passenger travel.

Despite drastic retrenchment in every department the carrier subsidiary had an operating loss of $1,220,024, compared with net earnings of $2,263,819 in 1931. Manufacturing operations, practically suspended during the year, resulted in an additional operating loss of $4,074,830 for the year, compared with a deficit of $2,340,774 in 1931.

Only in its investment department did Pullman, Inc., operate in the black in 1932. Such yield was $1,460,169, a drop of $381,147 from 1931.

Losses 5 Cents Per Passenger.

The Pullman company owns 8,279 cars but during 1932 only 5,693 of them were in operation. For every one of the 15,749,567 passengers carried last year, the company had to dig 5 cents out of surplus earnings in previous years.

And yet the management appears to be convinced that the trouble isn't that rates are too low, but to the contrary, that they are too high. This viewpoint is exactly the opposite of that taken by the railroad freight departments in seeking to raise rates or impose surcharges to compensate for business driven to trucks.

"Travelers lost an economy," says Mr. Crawford in his letter to stockholders, "have sought the lowest cost transportation available, resulting in much needless expenditure of money on the part of the traveling public and a consequent loss of business to the Pullman service and general lowering of American standards of travel comfort by rail and of both comfort and safety by use of highway vehicles."

Cheap Traffic Shrinks Less.

This is shown by decidedly smaller loss in volume reported in 1932 for intercity motor bus and railroad coach traffic. For the latter, transportation has been made quite widely and almost continuously available to the traveling public at rates substantially lower than those charged by travelers who wished to use Pullman accommodations.

"Such new differential rates, in addition to the regular surcharge differential, have been an added heavy handicap in the sale of Pullman accommodations. These differential rates have met with widespread objection on the part of the traveling public adversely affected thereby, and have been opposed by Pullman as unduly restrictive of sleeping and parlor car travel."

This is the first time the Pullman company has publicly stated a resentment against high rail rates that many of its officers have been known to be nursing for several years.

Particularly offensive to Pullman is the railway surcharge, which adds 50 per cent to the cost of a Pullman accommodation. In 1932, the Pullman company reported that the revenue from sleeping cars and parlor cars, this is just another hurdle that keeps the public from riding comfortably and keeps the car owner out of the black ink.

Fewer Passengers Per Car.

While high fares were keeping passenger cars out of sleeping and parlor cars last year, the Pullman company continued to operate equipment for which the demand had greatly diminished. Revenue passengers dropped from 24 millions in 1928 to less than 15 millions in 1932, a decrease of more than 40 per cent, but the number of miles traveled by Pullman cars dropped in the same period only about 20 per cent.

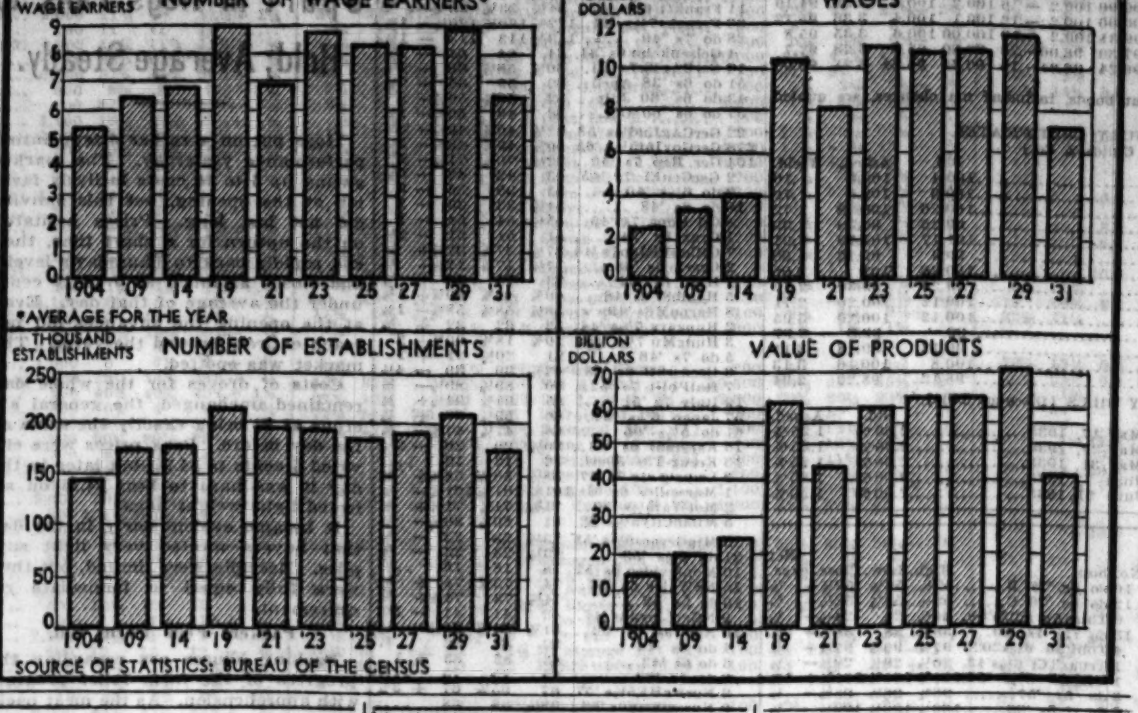

Consequently, last year the average Pullman car hauled less than nine persons. To be exact, the average loading of passengers per car in 1932 was 8.45, compared with 9.65 in 1931, 10.57 in 1930, 11.65 in 1929, and 12.08 in 1928.

Financial Position of Pullman, Inc., continues sound, according to the annual report, which is accompanied by the latter to stockholders. At the close of 1932, current assets were $75,170,000, of which nearly 38 millions were cash and United States government securities and another 20 millions represented equipment trust and other deferred payment car accounts. Current liabilities were only $10,892,000. Surplus was reduced from 112 millions to 76 millions during the year, largely as a result of the 23 million dollar writedown on Dec. 31, 1932, "to adjust the value of assets as nearly as we may to the basis of real worth."

DETROIT POURS DEPOSIT FLOOD INTO NEW BANK

DETROIT, Mich., March 24.—Patented equally by the United States government and the General Motors corporation, the new National bank of Detroit, the first to be established under the "Roosevelt emergency act plan," was opened today. The new institution was opened for business at 10 o'clock, but before that hour the corridors of the bank were filled with people who wished to be among the first to open commercial accounts.

Among the large depositors were the General Motors corporation, with a check for $1,000,000 made payable to the new bank; Chrysler corporation, $400,000; General Electric, $300,000; Detroit Edison, $200,000; J. L. Hudson, $140,000; Kroger Baking and Grocery company, $250,000, and Packard Motors, $100,000.

Response Is Favorable.

A favorable response to the money raising campaign are reported in a number of communities throughout the state. As much as half a million dollars has been raised by some institutions as a condition for winning a license to resume business.

Twenty-two state banks and one national bank reported in Illinois yesterday. No openings were reported in the Chicago area, although progress was reported by a number of institutions which are completing reorganization plans. Resumption of business is expected shortly by other banks in the metropolitan district.

OVER 22 MILLION OF NEW MONEY IN CIRCULATION

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 24.—(AP)—An increase of $12,100,000 in the amount of federal reserve bank notes in circulation in the country was shown today in the treasury's daily statement.

The statement for March 22 showed the amount of the new emergency money in circulation on that day was $22,631,975, while on March 21 the amount in circulation was $9,471,975. At the same time there was a decrease in the amount of federal reserve notes outstanding. Their total dropped from $4,684,385,200 on March 21 to $4,629,071,310 the next day.

OTIS ELEVATOR REPORTS $307,519 PROFIT FOR 1932

NEW YORK, March 24.—(AP)—The Otis Elevator company reported today consolidated net income for last year of $307,519 after all charges, equal to $4.73 a share on 65,000 shares of $3 cumulative preferred stock, compared with $4.14,935 for 1931, equal after preferred dividends to $2.01 a share on 2,000,000 no par common shares.

Cash, foreign fixed deposits and United States government securities totaled $11,629,537 at the year end, a decline of $3,124,427 from the total of $14,753,964 a year earlier.

Judge Ponders R. C. A. Bid for De Forest Radio Assets

Wilmington, Del., March 24.—(AP)—Federal Judge John P. Nields took under advisement today the petition of William S. Berkland of Wilmington and Leslie S. Gordon of Passaic, N. J., receivers for the De Forest Radio company, for permission to sell, for $500,000, the assets of the company, the Radio Corporation of America.

England's Return to Gold Basis Debated as Yellow Metal Rises

NEW YORK, March 24.—(AP)—The statement of the Bank of England published today, showing an increase in gold bullion to a new high figure and a substantial improvement in the reserve ratio, provoked wide comment in financial circles as to whether Great Britain might be taking steps to return soon to the gold standard.

The consensus here is that despite the recent favorable trend of developments in England, no immediate move will be made leading to Britain's return to gold. Wall Street leaders, familiar with the ramifications of foreign trade, are positive in their belief that England will bend every effort to prevent a further rise of the pound against the dollar.

Say Gold Would Hamper Trade.

A return to gold now, it is pointed out, would handicap Great Britain in her trade ambitions just at a time when she is making substantial progress in this direction.

At the same time, observers here have reason to believe England's financial leaders are focusing keen attention upon the whole question, and it is expected the matter will occupy an important place on the agenda of the forthcoming world conference because of its relation to foreign debts.

War Debt Still Unsettled.

At the same time, it is explained, the status of England's war debt to this country is still unsettled, and until there is some satisfactory adjustment of this problem, it is not believed England will attempt again to pay in gold on demand.

There is said to be no doubt that the political situation which has developed in Germany, has dampened optimism about the results of any world economic conference in the near future. As long as this situation exists, and the American monetary problem is not yet entirely cleared up, it is believed that England will move with great caution in making plans for any immediate return to gold.

STOCKS DRIFT, BUT CLOSE WITH SOME ADVANCES

A. T. & T. Is Chief Target of Selling.

BY FRED HARVEY.

NEW YORK, March 24.—Business tapered down on the New York Stock exchange today, the turnover barely approximating 650,000 shares. Price changes were mixed and generally unimportant, the upside having a slight edge.

Renewed pressure on the early leaders bore quotations down in the early trading, but enough weakness short covering developed in the late afternoon to erase most of the early losses.

American Telephone was the chief target for the bear sharpshooters. Around noon this utility pivotal was selling at $24, a new low for the year, but it rallied with the rest of the list to close within a fraction of 94. A downward revision of the big corporation's dividend rate later in the year is now taken for granted in the street. The last disbursement under the present $3 rate was ordered on Feb. 15.

Expect Dividend Cut.

To the growing doubt of phone cancellations which have been cutting so heavily into the company's funds is now added the worry of the almost universal demand for downward readjustment of utility rates throughout the country—including telephone tolls.

Farm implement shares sold off with the opening fall in wheat prices, but braced up with the grain as the session wore on. Case finished with a small net gain to its credit. International Harvester followed suit, as did the mail order shares, which usually take their cue from the commodity markets.

New York Traders Again Contributed a Little Action on the Upside.

Unification discussion as the excuse. Brooklyn-Manhattan rose nearly 2 points.

Preferred stocks were generally flattered with little regard for the properties. Losses among them ranged as high as 12 points, with New York Steam, North American Edition, United States Tobacco, Associated Oil, and Johns-Manville among the outstanding victims.

Can Expand Currency.

The notes representing such loans would be eligible security for federal reserve bank notes, the kind of currency authorized by the emergency banking act.

The bill also authorizes the Reconstruction corporation to lend money to state banks on their capital notes or debentures if the state law attaches a double liability to preferred stock.

RAIL EARNINGS CUT LAST MONTH BY BANK CRISIS

NEW YORK, March 24.—(AP)—Net operating income of the first thirteen railroads reporting for February was substantially below the aggregate of the carriers for the same month last year. This was partly the result of many bank difficulties interfering with business, and which culminated in the national bank holiday being proclaimed on March 6.

These roads had total net railway operating income of approximately $4,824,000, compared with $6,027,000 in February, 1932, a decrease of 28.1 per cent.

Net railway operating income of roads reporting today included the following:

Road	1932	1933
Pennsylvania	$1,540,823	$2,278,040
Southern Pacific	$1,238,348	$1,028,584
Rock Island	$928,000	$800,000
Wabash	$107,251	$107,808
St. Louis	$148,800	$148,800
New York & N. E.	$161,366	$161,366
St. Louis & W.	$6,435	7,205

Trade Reviews of Last Week Report Gains in Spring Lines

CHICAGO, March 24.—(AP)—The trade reviews for the week continue to report improvement in sentiment and a more vigorous movement in some lines stimulated by the spring season. At the same time it is admitted that the recovery of the last two weeks has been accompanied by a great deal of confusion.

Many Shoe Manufacturers Running Close to Capacity

Many manufacturers of shoes continue to operate at close to capacity, according to reports from factory centers. It is said that orders on hand insure a relatively high rate of operations for several weeks. Makers of high priced footwear are less active than those specializing in the cheaper merchandise.

15 Days' Building Awards Placed Above 24 Millions

Contracts for all classes of construction during the first half of March in the 37 states east of the Rocky mountains totaled $24,866,100, the F. W. Dodge corporation reported yesterday. In the corresponding period last year the awards aggregated $24,032,400. February awards totaled $25,712,300.

Globe, Rutgers Conservator Is Asked by N. Y.

REPEAL OF RAIL RECAPTURE LAW URGED IN HOUSE

NEW YORK, March 23.—State Superintendent of Insurance George S. Van Schaack will file a petition in the supreme court here tomorrow asking for the repeal of the rail recapture law, the third largest fire insurance company incorporated in New York state, for the purpose of rehabilitation.

With the court's consent, Superintendent Van Schaack will appoint a rehabilitator to conserve the assets of the company while steps are taken for its reorganization. The Globe & Rutgers Fire Insurance company's report to the state superintendent of insurance at the end of last year showed assets of $71,000,130. The company is understood to have issued earthquake insurance in the aggregate amount of $2,000,000 to policy holders who resided in the recent California earthquake.

Head Bishop Cannon Backer.

The president of the company is Edwin C. Jameson, who contributed $2,300 to the 1928 anti-Smith campaign fund of Bishop James Cannon Jr., and was indicted on a charge of having failed to report all that contribution. Subsequently he succeeded in having the indictment voided.

Formal announcement of the state insurance department's intention of taking over the company, with the consent of the supreme court, was made by Supt. Van Schaack as follows: "Superintendent of Insurance George S. Van Schaack today said a petition to the supreme court asking for an order directing him to take possession of the Globe and Rutgers Fire Insurance company for the purpose of rehabilitation."

Stock Breaks Sharply.

"Serious decline in the value of securities held by this company, together with widespread rumors of financial difficulties resulting in loss of confidence created a hazardous situation for the public breaks sharply."

Pending efforts to effect reorganization of the company in order to conserve the assets and protect the interests of policy holders and all other concerned parties, the Globe & Rutgers Fire Insurance company, traded in the local over the counter market, fared badly today. After having been quoted at 34 bid, 54 asked on Thursday, the price dropped today to 5 bid, 15 asked. The high bid for the year was $77 a share.

Organized in 1899 as a result of a merger of the Globe Insurance company and the Rutgers Fire Insurance company, the company has been organized to write policies covering fire, ocean marine, motor vehicles, earthquake, inland navigation and transportation, tornado, windstorm, cyclone, hail, sprinkler leakage, riot, civil commotion, and explosion insurance. The three largest lines written by the company in recent years have been on inland navigation and transportation, straight fire insurance, and ocean marine insurance. A fair volume has also been done in automobile insurance, while business in other lines has been small.

Control Over Mergers.

The other measure approved by the committee was a bill to control over ownership of railroads with relation to unification or consolidation of railroads. The bill strikes principally at the practice under which holding companies are not subject to the jurisdiction of the commission acquired control of railroads. Such activities under the bill would be made subject to the jurisdiction of the commission and acquisition of control of a railroad would not be lawful unless approved by the commission.

This legislation was recommended by the commission on the ground that without it the consolidation provisions of the railroads act of 1920 could not be made effective. That act provides for consolidation of the railroads into a limited number of systems in accordance with a plan made by the commission. Evading of the commission's scheme for consolidating the railroads was made possible by the holding company arrangement, it was contended.
